Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 12.—Back across the muddy Harlem to-day came the New York Nationals and the New York Americans to battle in the fourth game of the 1923 world series.

Awaiting at noon the appearance of these two teams in the field to struggle in the most crucial of the contests were between 15,000 and 20,000 fans who filled the small bleachers and more than half of the reserve seats of the double-decked grandstand. Several hundred of these stood in line part of the night and when the gates were thrown open the bleachers were quickly filled.

It was the nearest approach to summer weather that had been vouchsafed in the series. The sun was warm but it had to penetrate layers of mist and muck that settled over the oval enclosure in banks that obscured one end of the playing field to those in the other. But it was warm and top coats became a superfluity. Some optimistic bleachers got up perspiration on imagination.

There was no feeling of abandon about the early crowd that prevailed among those who saw the critical third game yesterday which Casey Stengel won for the Giants with a soul-lifting home run, just beyond the reach of Babe Ruth, his leader among the current entries to the immortals, into the crowds of the right-field stands.

The feeling was more tense than on any other day for the fans felt that if the Giants won today once again the Yankees would be battling for a last chance tomorrow.

The ball-players went about their preparations listlessly and spent much of their time watching the comedians.

Where the atmosphere on opening day was gay with anticipation, that of the second and that of yesterday's charged with the most unbalancing of excitement, that of today was heavy with forebodings even when a squad of Yankees came on at 12:20 there was no cheering. They began to toss the ball up all appearance of grim determination in their faces.

It was announced Wally Pipp would play first for the Yankees. The story of the game:

First Inning
Yankees—Witt singled past Bancroft. Dugan popped to Snyder. Ruth struck out. Bancroft took Meusel's grounder and touched second. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Schang scored on Shawkey's sacrifice fly to Stengel. Witt got a long hit into left-field and Scott scored. It was a two-bagger for Witt. Groh, Dugan's grounder, and touched Witt. Ruth's grounder and Ruth scored on Meusel's long three-base hit to left-field. Ryan, was knocked out of the box, the second Giants pitcher to be sent back to the bench in the inning. McQuillan went into the box for the Giants. Pipp flied out to Stengel. Six runs, five hits, one error.

GETTING READY FOR 'ROUND-UP' OF NEXT WEEK

Salvation Army Headquarters Is Hive of Activity as Day for Drive Nears

CAMPAIGN ENDORSED

Salvation Army headquarters is a hive of activity in preparation for the "round-up" which will begin next Tuesday afternoon.

Endorsing the coming campaign, Rev. L. E. Johnson, pastor of the Baptist church declared that the Salvation Army is best known for its adherence to the principle of non-resistance.

South summarized these principles, 50 years ago when he said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature."

"The Salvation Army pours out itself and its funds. It can never be self-supporting as long as it continues to work where it does, where it is most needed. If the Salvation Army should stop its work tonight, communities would not be safe places in which to live. Thousands would go hungry; hundreds of thousands would be homeless. There would be no place for unfortunate girls but their lives."

"So the Salvation Army must have funds to continue. It has no source of income other than the general public. The funds derived from campaigns and collections are not kept by the Salvation Army, but are at once passed on for the relief of the poor and distressed."

"The Salvation Army is a public servant. It does social service work, reclamation and reformation work, performing a service that other agencies cannot even attempt."

"Let us all remember—we are rich or poor—that the sweetest generosity is denying ourselves of something in order to give. This is the generosity that likens us to Christ, and this is the seed which when sown will make us to gather up to a harvest of perpetual blessings that this world cannot give."

The committee added: "The Salvation Army is the strongest and largest religious, social service, relief (or charity) organization in the world. It opens its doors to every human being who may need help. No conditions, creedal, ethical or racial are made. Need is the sole consideration. It feeds the hungry, clothes the naked, houses the homeless, cleans the unclean and cheers the hopeless."

"Surely it is worth while to keep an organization that does all these things with no thought of reward or even thanks."

"Those who make sacrifices for the Army's work have the knowledge that they are partners in the good being accomplished and the value of this partnership cannot be measured. The annual fund for the Salvation Army's work will benefit both those who give and those who receive."

GOVERNOR'S BANK CLOSED

VIOLATED LAW LOSES CLAIM FOR DEPOSIT

Supreme Court Holds Where Interest Exceeded 6 Per Cent Protection Lost

HAD SUED TO RECOVER

Sought to Force Guaranty Commission to Award Claim For $5,000 He Lost

The state supreme court, in an opinion handed down today, decided that E. McQuerry of Dasey, N. D. does not have a valid claim against the Depositors Guaranty Fund Commission for money lost in a closed bank on which the bank agreed to pay a rate of interest in excess of that permitted under the Guaranty Fund law and regulations of the commission.

The court in deciding the case, affirmed District Judge Fred Janssonius of the Burleigh county district court and settled a legal question expected to have far-reaching effect in the settlement of claims under the Guaranty Fund Commission law.

McQuerry, about October 1, 1920, read an advertisement in Fargo papers that the Security State Bank of New England would take liberty bonds at par and issue certificates of deposit therefor which would be guaranteed by the North Dakota Depositors' Guaranty Law, the court's opinion by Justice L. E. Birdsell, said; McQuerry, not having on hand to amount of bonds sufficient to meet the requirements of the transaction, corresponded with the bank and the latter agreed to buy bonds for him at the prevailing price of 90 and issue a certificate of deposit for par value. The plaintiff McQuerry drew his check in favor of the New England bank for $5,000 which was paid in regular course. The bank issued a time deposit certificate for $5,000 payable to the plaintiff in three years with interest at five percent. On November 12, 1920, the bank was closed. McQuerry made claim for the money from the Guaranty Fund Commission.

Refused To Pay
The state examiner and the Guaranty Fund Commission refused to allow the claim for payment from the Depositors' Guaranty Fund.

The court held that the plaintiff "knowingly received therefor a certificate of deposit which would entitle him to a return exceeding the rate of interest permitted by law." In Burleigh county, the court sets out the banks were authorized to pay six percent interest. Under the law a bank could not pay more than 6 percent interest unless permitted to do so by the Guaranty Fund Commission.

The court said: "A provision in a depositor's guaranty law limiting rates of interest that banks shall be permitted to charge upon deposits can be inserted for but one object, the protection of the guaranty fund against the consequences of loose banking methods. If a bank finds it necessary to borrow money, this act in no way limits its power to do so, but when it seeks to borrow the lender will loan only on the strength of the bank's security. If the bank be in such condition that it cannot borrow on favorable terms or at all, it might then seek indirectly to borrow by soliciting deposits and issuing certificates of deposit, giving assurances that they would be secured by the depositor's guaranty fund. Manifestly, the more favorable the contract to the prospective depositor, the more likely the bank would be to succeed in obtaining such deposits, and the larger the rate of interest paid, the greater the likelihood of failure and of consequent liability of the guaranty fund. Hence, the limitation of the contract rate of interest on deposits and the stringency of the penal provision in case of violation. Manifestly, if it should be held that the depositor entering into such a prohibited contract may nevertheless pursue his claim against the depositor's guaranty fund, he would be given an advantage at the expense of a fund which is jeopardized by his act and other depositors, acting with scrupulous regard to legislative regulations, would be prejudiced."

Jeopardizes Others
"If it be contended that the plaintiff sent his money to the bank for the purpose of purchasing liberty bonds at the current quotation which the bank could repurchase from him at par and that, in the absence of action, he should at least be considered a depositor of the amount so entrusted, the answer is that the conversion of a fund held by a bank for investment does not make the owner of the fund a general depositor within the guaranty law."

DON'T GO TO WEST COAST NOW, IS ADVICE OF RETURNED BISMARCKER

"Don't go west, young man." This is the advice of H. T. O'Connell, Bismarck man who has been on the west coast for sometime. Times have changed since Horace Greeley spoke, he said.

Mr. O'Connell has been in the Boise, Idaho, fruit basin country and all through Washington and Oregon. This is the information he brought back to Bismarck.

The country is pretty well filled up with men, with people flocking there from almost everywhere. Many are attracted by the proposed Portland, 1924, fair which has been indefinitely postponed.

There is a surplus of machinists of all kinds. It is a poor place for a man in the building trades to go. It also is a poor place for unskilled labor, because of the big surplus. There are many men out of work. These conditions are found in the coast cities.

Conditions in the fruit belts are not much better. There is a good crop of fruit but no market for it. Prune growers receive $8 a ton at the dryer's and many acres are not picked.

Many fruit farms are mortgaged for more than they are worth, because of the fall in the price of the land. Many farms can be obtained by assuming a mortgage, he said.

"I would not advise the average man to go there," said Mr. O'Connell.

The only place where work appears plentiful, he said, was in the lumber camps in the interior of Washington and Oregon.

COOLIDGE ADMINISTRATION STANDS BEHIND ENFORCEMENT OF DRY LAWS, HAYNES TELLS WASHINGTON PARLEY

Washington, Oct. 12.—Assurance that the Coolidge administration, like that of the late President Harding, stands squarely for prohibition law enforcement was given by Prohibition Commissioner Haynes at the session of the citizenships conference on enforcement, called by the Federal Council of Churches.

Adoption of a practical program for awakening "the moral force of the nation" to the need of law observance was set forth as the purpose of the three-day meeting.

"This administration is four-square for enforcement," Commissioner Haynes declared, "and the eastern seaboard there was strong opposition sentiment and almost complete demoralization of citizenship forces until officers, courts, prosecutors and juries have but little or any sense of public support."

LEE DILLAGE AGAIN FREED BEFORE JURY

North Dakota Man Tried in Canada Is Relieved of Charge of Robbery

Estevan, Canada, Oct. 12.—After three-quarters of an hour's deliberation a jury in the Kings Bench court here last night returned a verdict of not guilty in the trial of Lee Dillage of Lignite, North Dakota, charged with the robbery of $6,000 from the body of Paul Matoff, Regina liquor agent, murdered by arsonists at Bienfait, November, 1922.

First tried for murder and found not guilty, then charged with robbery with violence, the jury disagreed in the Kings Bench court last night. This resulted in trial in the present court on the latter charge. The murder of Matoff was a climax of a long series of holdups along the border.

SOME REWARD!

Berlin, Oct. 12.—For apprehension of the murderer of a ten-year-old girl, Berlin police have offered a reward of 800,000 marks. At the prevailing rate of exchange, this is about one-eighth of a cent.

The newspaper contended that the notices which the Board of University and School Lands published in various counties in the state should be in official newspapers. E. J. Kampman, attorney for the board, took the position that they might be published as other legal are published, and his contention is sustained.

WALTON SENDS LIEUTENANTS INTO DISCARD

Oklahoma Governor Breaks With Two of His Most Consistent Supporters

ORDERS REMOVAL

Legislative Impeachment Committee Continues Sessions on Official Acts

Oklahoma City, Oct. 12.—A statement declaring that the Klan fight was on and that he was "called by the Lord" to continue the fight unhampered was issued today by Aldrich Blake, former executive councillor, who was removed by Gov. Walton.

Oklahoma City, Oct. 12.—Facing the crisis of his political career, Governor J. C. Walton had cast aside two of his foremost lieutenants in the administration of Oklahoma affairs.

With a legislative impeachment court already investigating his official conduct, the Governor threw a veritable bombshell into the ranks of the followers of the situation last night when he ordered the removal from office of Aldrich Blake, the executive councillor, and Dr. E. T. Bynum, the state bank commissioner, both of whom, since the days of the primary campaign, have been his chief advisers and constant attendants.

The ousted officials went immediately before the house committee inquiring into impeachment charges against the Governor and while the nature of their testimony was not made public their appearance before the body was accepted as sufficient indication that their break with the Governor was about.

Dr. Bynum has administered his office since the Governor's removal, charged, and is out of harmony with the executive office. There was no explanation given for Blake's removal.

Over the denial of Blake that the action had any significance, the opinion given by the committee today that the address of former United States Senator Gore of Oklahoma before the state legislature Thursday precipitated the removal of the officials. Such has been an ardent follower of the former administration.

Governor Walton, it is argued by some, felt that their alignment to him ended when they sponsored the former senator Gore's address in which he severely criticized the administration. He did not, however, mention specific departments.

The legislature is in adjournment until Monday but the investigating committee is expected today to continue its sittings.

But if she were passing through a drawing room filled with friends, she could not be more calm or gracious. She takes her seat at the table, opposite her accusers as if she were sitting down to a hand of bridge, or waiting for a cup of tea.

And while the lawyers get excited and the judge calls order, while Stokes herself confers with his lawyers or gets up for a stroll in the corridors, while the witnesses get muddled in their testimony and the reporters take busy notes, she maintains the most impersonal interest and the most stoical calm.

She is the one person at the trial who is composed and apparently under no nervous strain. She smiles frequently, and never during a whole day did I see a look of scorn or anger, no matter what was being brought up against her.

"Because," she explained with a smile, "I believe in justice. I believe in right."

"I believe in believing in justice and right no matter how unfavorable things look. If you aren't guilty, a million witnesses and a million dollars can't make you so, can they? So why worry?"

GETTING READY FOR 'ROUND-UP' OF NEXT WEEK

Salvation Army Headquarters Is Hive of Activity as Day for Drive Nears

CAMPAIGN ENDORSED

Salvation Army headquarters is a hive of activity in preparation for the "round-up" which will begin next Tuesday afternoon.

Endorsing the coming campaign, Rev. L. R. Johnson, pastor of the Baptist church declared that the Salvation Army is best known for its adherence to the principles laid down by its founder.

Booth summarized these principles, 50 years ago, when he said, "Go for souls and go for the worst."

The Salvation Army does this and it does it in a practical and efficient manner," he said.

"The Salvation Army pours out itself and its funds. It can never be self-supporting as long as it continues to work where it does, where it is most needed. If the Salvation Army should stop its work tonight, communities would not be safe places in which to live. Thousands would go hungry; hundreds of thousands would be homeless. There would be no place for unfortunate girls but their river."

"So the Salvation Army must have funds to continue. It has no source of income other than the general public. The funds derived from campaigns and collections are not kept by the Salvation Army, but are at once passed on for the relief of the poor and distressed."

"The Salvation Army is a public servant. It does social service work, reclamation and reformation work, performing a service that other agencies cannot even attempt."

"Let us all remember—we are rich or poor—that the sweetest generosity is denying ourselves of something in order to give. This is the generosity that likens us to Christ, and this is the seed which when sown will wake us to gather up the harvest of perpetual blessings that this world cannot give."

The committee added: "The Salvation Army is the strongest and largest religious, social service, relief (or charity) organization in the world. It opens its doors to every human being who may need help. No conditions, creedal, ethical or racial are made. Need is the sole consideration. It feeds the hungry, clothes the naked, houses the homeless, cleans the unclean and cheers the hopeless."

"Surely it is worth while to keep an organization that does all these things with no thought of reward or even thanks."

"Those who make sacrifices for the Army's work have the knowledge that they are partners in the good being accomplished and the value of this partnership cannot be measured. The annual fund for the Salvation Army's work will benefit both those who give and those who receive."

VIOLATED LAW LOSES CLAIM FOR DEPOSIT

Supreme Court Holds Where Interest Exceeded 6 Per Cent Protection Lost

HAD SUED TO RECOVER

Sought to Force Guaranty Commission to Award Claim For $5,000 He Lost

The state supreme court, in an opinion handed down today, decided that E. McQuerry of Daze, N. D. does not have a valid claim against the Depositors Guaranty Fund Commission for money lost in a closed bank on which the bank agreed to pay a rate of interest in excess of that permitted under the Guaranty Fund law and regulations of the commission.

The court in deciding the case, affirmed District Judge Fred Jansonius of the Burleigh county district court and settled a legal question expected to have far-reaching effect in the settlement of claims under the Guaranty Fund Commission law.

McQuerry, about October 1, 1920, read an advertisement in Fargo papers that the Security State Bank of New England would take liberty bonds at par and issue certificates of deposit therefor which would be guaranteed by the North Dakota Depositors' Guaranty Law, the court's opinion, by Justice L. E. Birdzell, said: McQuerry, not having on hand in amount of bonds sufficient to meet the requirements of the transaction, corresponded with the bank and the latter agreed to buy bonds for him at the prevailing price of 90 and issue a certificate of deposit for par value.

The court said: "A provision in a depositor's guaranty law limiting rates of interest that banks shall be permitted to charge upon deposits can be inserted for but one object, the protection of the guaranty fund against the consequences of loose banking methods. If a bank finds it necessary to borrow money, this act in no way limits its power to do so, but when it seeks to borrow the lender will loan only on the strength of the bank's security. If the bank be in such condition that it cannot borrow on favorable terms or at all, it might then seek indirectly to borrow by soliciting deposits and issuing certificates of deposit, giving assurances that they would be secured by the depositor's guaranty fund. Manifestly, the more favorable the contract to the prospective depositor, the more likely the bank would be to succeed in obtaining such deposits, and the larger the rate of interest paid, the greater the likelihood of failure and of consequent liability of the guaranty fund. Hence, the limitation of the contract rate of interest on deposits and the stringency of the penal provision in case of violation. Manifestly, if it should be held that the depositor entering into such a prohibited contract may nevertheless repurchase from him the deposited guaranty fund, he would be given an advantage at the expense of a fund which is jeopardized by his act, and other depositors, acting with scrupulous regard to legislative regulations, would be prejudiced."

Refused To Pay
The state examiner and the Guaranty Fund Commission refused to allow the claim for payment from the Depositors' Guaranty Fund.

The court held that the plaintiff "knowingly received therefor a certificate of deposit which would entitle him to a return exceeding the rate of interest permitted by law."

In Hettinger county, the court sets out the banks were authorized to pay six percent interest. Under the law a bank could not pay more than 6 percent interest unless permitted to do so by the Guaranty Fund Commission.

COOLIDGE ADMINISTRATION STANDS BEHIND ENFORCEMENT OF DRY LAWS, HAYNES TELLS WASHINGTON PARLEY

Washington, Oct. 13.—Assurance that the Coolidge administration, like that of the late President Harding, stands squarely for prohibition law enforcement was given my Prohibition Commissioner Haynes at the session of the citizenship conference on enforcement, called by the Federal Council of Churches.

Adoption of a practical program for awakening "the moral force of the nation" to the need of law observance was set forth as the purpose of the three-day meeting.

"This administration is foursquare for enforcement," Commissioner Haynes declared in his address to the conference. "We all know how valiantly President Harding supported and sponsored it. No less whole-hearted is President Coolidge's position on law enforcement."

Commissioner Haynes called urgently on friends of prohibition to awake to "the insidious propaganda" which he charged was being directed against the dry law.

"I do not believe our friends have any conception of the amazing onslaught which is now in progress and is under contemplation by the enemy," said Mr. Haynes in denying that the dries were discouraged and declaring that progress of enforcement had been most satisfactory. In some localities, however, principally on the eastern seaboard there was strong opposition to prohibition and almost complete demoralization of citizenship forces until officers, courts, prosecutors and juries have but little or any sense of public support."

WALTON SENDS LIEUTENANTS INTO DISCARD

Oklahoma Governor Breaks With Two of His Most Consistent Supporters

ORDERS REMOVAL

Legislative Impeachment Committee Continues Sessions on Official Acts

Oklahoma City, Oct. 13.—A statement declaring that "The Klan fight must go on" and that he was "determined to be free to continue the fight unhampered" was issued today by Aldrich Blake, former executive counselor, who was removed by Gov. Walton.

Oklahoma City, Oct. 13.—Facing the crisis of his political career, Governor J. C. Walton had cast aside two of his foremost lieutenants in the administration of Oklahoma affairs.

With a legislative impeachment court already investigating his official conduct the Governor threw a veritable bombshell into the ranks of the followers of the situation last night when he ordered the removal from office of Aldrich Blake, the executive counselor, and Dr. T. Bynum, the state bank commissioner, both of whom, since the days of the primary campaign, have been his chief advisers and constant attendants.

The two ousted officials went immediately before the house committee inquiring into impeachment charges against the Governor and while the nature of their testimony was not made public their appearance before the body was accepted as sufficient indication that their break with the Governor was final.

Dr. Bynum has administered his office since the Governor's removal, charged, and is out of harmony with the executive office. There was no explanation given for Blake's removal.

Over the denial of Blake that the affair had any significance the opinion gained strength in political quarters today that the address of former United States Senator Gore of Oklahoma before the state legislature Thursday precipitated the removal of the two officials. Each has been an ardent follower of the former senator.

Governor Walton, it is argued by some, felt that their allegiance to him ended when they sponsored the former senator Gore's address in which he severely criticized the administration. He did not, however, mention specific departments.

The legislature is in adjournment until Monday but the investigating committee is expected today to continue its sittings.

MODERN DOCTOR VS. QUACK

Scientific Progress Is Rapidly Driving the Charlatans Out of the Field.

When the doctor gently chides the patient who has wasted vitally valuable time chasing the latest advertised panacea, the victim always has a "come-back." He—or, more often, she—retorts that the medical profession is always opposed to new methods of treatment. There is no gainsaying the fact that ancient and medieval medicine was narrow and ecclesiastical in its attitude. At that time medicine was not a science, but a more or less imperfect art. It attracted, it is true, many brilliant minds, but it also had in its ranks a large preponderance of mystics and charlatans.

What we know today as the science of medicine is of recent growth. The application of modern scientific methods to the study of the human body and its processes has produced results as far-reaching in their scope as any accomplished in other fields of human endeavor. Moreover, by employing the methods of the Twentieth century both to the study of medicine and to the organization of the medical profession, charlatanism and mysticism have become the exception instead of the rule in medicine. The modern medical quack and faddist is but an exorcism. The result of all this has been to raise enormously the standard of the collective judgment of the medical profession. A careful review of modern medicine will show that in not one instance has the mass judgment of physicians been at fault in condemning methods of treatment that have failed to meet the exacting requirements demanded by the doctor of today.

PYGMIES AVERAGE 5 FEET

Wherever Found, They Possess Certain Striking Resemblances—Neglect Agriculture.

There are certain popular errors concerning the race of undersized men and women known as pygmies. Usually travelers have measured the most diminutive specimens, and thus an exaggerated idea of their smallness has been produced. The average stature of the pygmies that have been measured is about four feet eight inches, but the best authorities in anthropology say that the real average height of stature is five feet. Some are taller than that.

The pygmies have been found in eight or ten different places in Central Africa, but wherever found they possess certain striking resemblances.

The plant furnishing the covering for their huts is the same in the widely separated regions visited by Stanley and others, and the shape of the huts, a rough hemisphere, is the same.

All the pygmies are alike characterized by neglect of agriculture, by the use of poisoned arrows, and by the absence of any kind of tribal organization.—Kansas City Times.

Trip Through New Guinea Costly.

New Guinea is a rough country to travel in—absolutely virgin jungle, without even a path other than the knife-cut paths carved out of the wall of vegetation that covers the greater part of the island. And it is a costly thing to travel through the jungle, for everything you are likely to wear, eat and use on the trip must be carried with you on the backs of your native porters; the jungle being impenetrable of even the poorest sort of store or shop. Man transportation is expensive, too, and a moderate estimate for the cost of a tour inland by two white men and thirty native carriers is not less than $500 a month. The lonely white man can travel in most countries; in New Guinea he is unknown. Arctic exploration is not more strenuous than a journey through the interior of New Guinea.—Adventure Magazine.

Found Wrangel Island in 1867.

The first authentic account concerning Wrangel island, which has been attracting so much international interest, was from Captain Long, master of the American whaling barque Nile, who in the summer of 1867 on a whaling voyage, named this land Wrangel land, after Baron Wrangel, and two of the headlands he named after one of his crew named Thomas, this man being the first to see the island.

The promontory Hawaii he named after the island, where in winter, in the harbor of Honolulu, the whalers made their rendezvous there to outfit for another season. These names are today on the charts of Wrangel island.

August 12, 1881, Capt. Calvin Cooper, commanding the United States revenue steamship Corwin, landed and took possession of Wrangel land in the name of the United States of America.

Air Chamber Saves Divers Stricken at Work

As a first aid appliance to save the lives of divers stricken at their work, a large steel tank, in which they are placed, is filled with compressed air to break up and drive out bubbles of gas that cause them to become paralyzed or unconscious. The pressure is started at 30 pounds and increased or decreased as the patient needs it. Even though a constant supply of air is pumped below to a diver at work, the great weight of the water and too long periods undersea frequently overcome him, making quick action necessary to prevent his death.

Animal So Small It Lives in a Drop of Water

So tiny that it can be seen only by aid of a magnifying glass, an animal, heretofore unknown, has been discovered by an eastern scientist. By means of whiplash strokes of hairlike projections covering its body it can move rapidly about in a drop of water. The little creature feeds chiefly on germs and other animals living in the water. It measures about one two-hundredths of an inch long and is less than one-fourth as wide.

Pacific's Bottom Is Charted by Timing Sound Waves

Charting the bottom of the Pacific ocean between United States and Australia is the task of a navy cruiser using a delicate apparatus to measure the time required for sound to pass from the surface of the water to the ocean's bed and return. For preventing falls while washing windows in the home, a safety seat has been made which swings on two chains attached to hooks in the window frames. A strap stretched between the chains supports the worker's back

LIGHT DECLINE IN BUILDING IN SEPTEMBER

Drops Only 3 Per Cent From August, Corporation's Figures of U. S. Show

The decline in construction volume which began in June continued through September, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation. However, the September drop from August was only 3 percent. Total September building contracts in the 36 Eastern States (including about 7.8 of the total construction volume of the country) amounted to $288,931,700. In the 27 states for which records were kept last year the drop from September 1922 was 7 percent. In these 27 states construction during the first nine months of this year has been just equal to the amount for the corresponding period of last year although on June 1st this year had a lead of 15 percent over last year.

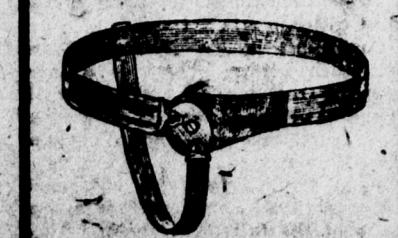

This year's construction volume to date in the 36 Eastern States has amounted to $3,012,510,500. Last month's record for the 36 states included the following important items: $111,906,000, or 39 per-

HOLIHAN BODY TO BE CLAIMED BY RELATIVES

Disposition of the Body Awaits the Arrival of Relatives from Aberdeen, S. D.

CORONER'S VERDICT

Arrangements for the burial of James H. Holihan, who committed suicide in his office here, will not be made until after the arrival of a member of the family, George Woolworth, a brother-in-law from Aberdeen, S. D. He is coming by way of Jamestown and will reach the city late tonight. It is understood he will take the body to Aberdeen for burial.

Communication with the relatives was established through the Elks lodge of which Mr. Holihan was a member. The local lodge notified officers of the Aberdeen lodge to notify the relatives to see that notification of the death of Mr. Holihan went to his aged mother in Aberdeen through relatives or sympathetic lodge members. She was not to be informed of the manner of death. Effort was being made to establish communication with a brother of Mr. Holihan.

The body of the deceased lay in Webb's Undertaking Parlors today, following the inquest held late yesterday afternoon. Coroner's Jury Verdict. The jury arrived at an inevitable verdict of suicide. Witnesses included R. D. Hoskins, Chief of Police; Martinson, Deputy Sheriff; Kater and Dr. F. B. Straus.

The story of how Mr. Holihan's body was found after his office was broken into was related. He was lying on the bed in the sleeping apartment he had in the office, partially clothed, with a bullet wound in the right temple and a .32 calibre automatic revolver clutched tightly in his right hand, which had fallen to one side. The imprint of the gun was on the fingers so tightly it was clutched.

There were no lights burning in the room. The time of death still is held by authorities to have been Wednesday night. One store in this city reported that a telephone call was received Thursday from a man whose voice appeared to be that of Mr. Holihan, but he gave no name. No one has been found who saw him later than Wednesday afternoon.

The coroner's jury was composed of W. S. Rohrer, S. A. Floren and Claire Derby.

Death Casts Gloom. The death of Mr. Holihan, who was a cheerful figure in the city, cast a general pall of gloom. The suicide is generally attributed to poor health and perhaps business worries. He had complained lately of stomach troubles.

A letter left in his office, addressed to Dr. C. C. Hibbs, related to business matters but was not in the nature of a farewell note. It was indicated from the letter that Mr. Holihan had contemplated suicide for at least three weeks.

Dr. Hibbs, who knew Mr. Holihan very well, said that he believed he had been in the real estate business in this city for at least 12 years, and had previously come into this country selling insurance.

Mr. Holihan was a manufacturing chemist and formerly owned a drug store in South Dakota. He had obtained a South Dakota pharmacist's license in the days when it was the hardest license in the country to get from the standpoint of professional qualifications, Dr. Hibbs said. Mr. Holihan had been married in Iowa when a young man and the death of his wife affected him greatly. He was very kind to his aged mother, who lives in Aberdeen.

He was known as a cheerful man, honest and generous to a fault, his many friends declared. During the war he served the government, being detailed on many missions of more or less of a secret service nature, it is understood.

He was a member of the Elks and Knights of Columbus.

To Whom It May Concern: I used the Ratekin Lignite Grate in my furnace last winter, and heartily recommend it as a necessity, especially for burning Lignite coal. It saves coal by providing complete combustion, giving more heat by giving a draft of air thru the coal and burning the gas which is a large per cent of the heat value, which without the grate is drawn off thru the chimney as complete waste. I am more than satisfied with the grate, and if I could not obtain another one would not part with it at any price.

STATE SOON TO BE CLASSIFIED AS DIVERSIFIED

Agricultural College Writer Sees Study of Statistics Revealing This

RECORDS ARE SHOWN

By Sidney W. Hooper
Fargo, N. D., Oct. 12.—North Dakota hasn't so far to go before it can be truly classified as a diversified farming state. That's the conclusion from a study of statistics made at the State Agricultural college, based on the assumption that the value of livestock products furnishes an index to the amount of diversification.

Records and estimates show that the value of livestock products sold and consumed in the state during the current year will slightly exceed the total value of the 1923 wheat crop, for the first time in the history of the state, according to available records. The value of the 1923 wheat crop has been estimated at $52,000,000, based on federal estimates of production and average farm prices of 50 cents per bushel for hard wheat and 75 for durum. The estimated total value of animal products used on farms and sold during the year is $52,675,885, based on the most reliable of the scanty reports available. This total is arrived at as follows:

The value of all dairy products sold and of butter consumed on the farm during 1923, according to the national census, was $19,576,343 for North Dakota. The number of dairy cows on farms has increased 33 percent since that time, according to the assessor's records on file at the office of Joseph A. Kitchen, state commissioner of agriculture. The price of butterfat per pound is approximately the same at this time as it was in 1919. Using the increase in dairy cows as an index to the value of dairy products, this item for 1923 would total $26,000,836. This total does not include the value of milk and cream used on farms having dairy cattle, which, according to farm records in the office of Rex E. Willard, farm management department, would average $103 per farm or a total of $8,760,455, or a total value for dairy products in 1923 of $34,769,291, which alone is two-thirds of the value of the wheat crop.

The 1923 wool clip is estimated at 1,500,000 pounds by J. W. Pass state county agent and former manager of the state wool pool. He estimates the value of the clip to the farmers at $500,000, or 33 cents per pound.

The value of poultry and eggs sold and consumed on farms during 1922 is placed at $4,426,162 in the assessor's reports of cattle, sheep, and hogs slaughtered for home consumption, $4,246,352, and of cattle, sheep and hogs sold, $9,506,119. Figures for these items are not available for 1923, but the records for several years back show a consistent increase in their value, with the likelihood that these figures would be very conservative for 1923.

The totals for these various items follow:

Dairy products	$34,769,291
Animals sold	9,506,119
Meat for farms	4,246,352
Poultry	3,126,408
Wool	500,000
Total	$52,675,885

"Of course, it isn't pleasant to listen to what I have to do in court. It's like an unpleasant problem play, or a bad chapter in a morbid book. If it were true, it would be too terrible. But it's just fiction, and I take it as such, with full confidence that the jury and the world at large will be able to distinguish between fact and malicious fancy."

"I can hold out as long as the opposition does and I'm going to. I'll clear my name before the world and before my children. If the case lasts for a month, I'll not break down or lose my courage. I promise you that."

In appearance, she looks exactly like a description of what the well-dressed business woman should wear. Her trim blue serge suit, with a feminine white batiste blouse beneath her little blue turban whose crown is just a bit of the red hair to show beneath, the well keeping it in perfect place, and the gray fox fur kept at a becoming angle, and the gray gloves, all further the impression of her perfect poise and control.

Another thing I noticed was that she refrained from manifesting any concern or superiority when the first witness against her walked under the testimony and was charged with perjury.

"I only want to vindicate myself in this court," she said. "I don't want anyone else to suffer on my account."

AT THE MOVIES

CAPITOL.
The first feature length comedy, "Three Ages," to be made with Buster Keaton as the star, is the best work of this ingenious young comedian. "Three Ages" playing at the Capitol theater Monday, is replete with laughs and thrills and establishes Keaton permanently in big full length feature comedies.

In "Three Ages" Buster springs with agility from side splitting positions of life as it was in the cave man era to an hilarious explanation of life as it was in the brilliant reign of triumphant Rome. From Rome we carry us forward to our own age where he enjoys himself in a keen satire of the modern world never losing sight, however, of the humorous, the pathetic, the uproarious touches with which modern life is full.

"Three Ages" has a cast of more than two thousand people in several of the massive scenes staged in a duplication of the age-old Colosseum in Rome. This Colosseum set is said to have cost a huge sum and is the largest set ever constructed.

STATE SOON TO BE CLASSIFIED AS DIVERSIFIED

Agricultural College Writer Sees Study of Statistics Revealing This

RECORDS ARE SHOWN

By Sidney W. Hooper
Farro, N. D., Oct. 13.—North Dakota hasn't so far to go before it can be truly classified as a diversified farming state. That's the conclusion from a study of statistics made at the State Agricultural college, based on the assumption that the value of livestock products furnishes an index to the amount of diversification.

Records and estimates show that the value of livestock products sold and consumed in the state during the current year will slightly exceed the total value of the 1923 wheat crop, for the first time in the history of the state, according to available records. The value of the 1923 wheat crop has been estimated at $52,000,000, based on federal estimates of production and average farm prices of 30 cents per bushel for hard wheat and 75 cents for durum. The estimated total value of animal products used on farms and sold during the year is $52,675,885, based on the most reliable of the scanty reports available. This total is arrived at as follows:

The price of butterfat per pound is approximately the same at this time as it was in 1919. Using the increase in dairy cows as an index to the value of dairy products, this item for 1923 would total $25,043,436. This total does not include the value of milk and cream used on farms having dairy cattle, which, according to farm records in the office of Rex E. Willard, farm management department, would average $193 per farm or a total of $8,760,455, or a total value for dairy products in 1923 of $33,803,891, which alone is two-thirds of the value of the wheat crop.

The 1923 wool clip is estimated at 1,500,000 pounds by J. W. Hass state county agent and former manager of the state wool pool. He estimates the value of the clip to the farmers at $500,000, or 33 cents per pound.

The value of poultry and eggs sold and consumed on farms during 1922 is placed at $3,436,492 in the county assessors' reports; of cattle, sheep, and hogs slaughtered for home consumption, $4,246,393, and of cattle, sheep and hogs sold, $9,506,119. Figures for these items are not available for 1923, but the records for several years back show a consistent increase in their value, with the likelihood that these figures would be very conservative for 1923.

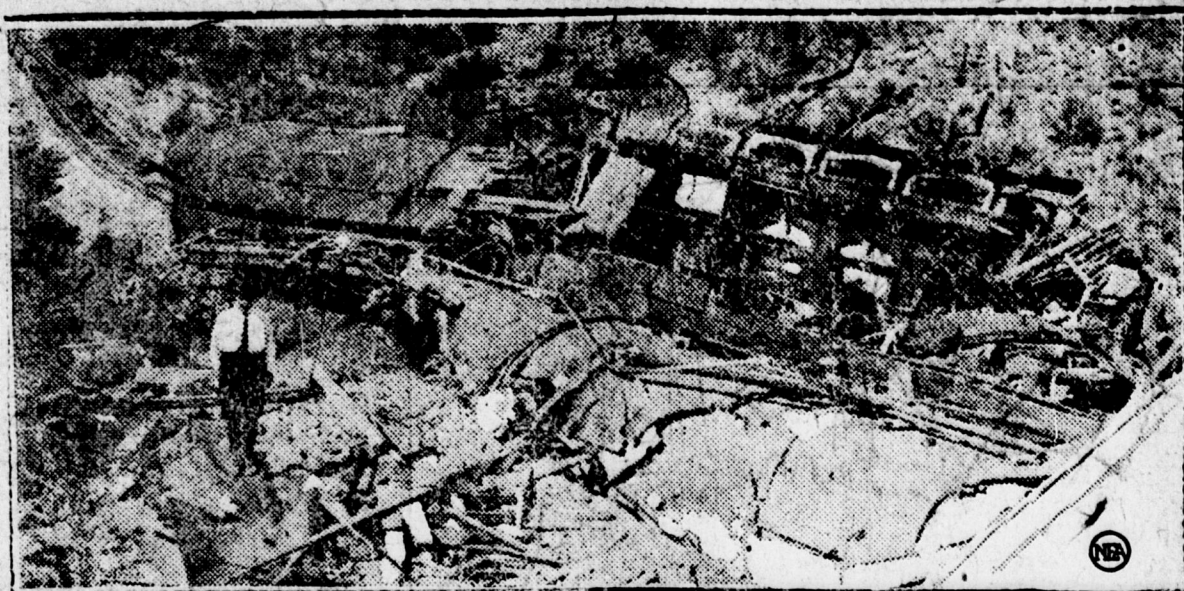

The totals for these various items follow:

Most At Stake, Mrs. Stockes Calmest Person

"Of course, it isn't pleasant to listen to what I have to in court. It's like an unpleasant problem play, or a bad chapter in a morbid book. If it were true, it would be too terrible. But it's just fiction, and I take it as such, with full confidence that the jury and the world at large will be able to distinguish between fact and malicious fancy."

"I can hold out as long as the opposition does and I'm going to. I'll clear my name before the world and before my children. If the case lasts for a month, I'll not break down or lose my courage. I promise you that."

In appearance, she looks exactly like a description of what the well-dressed business woman should wear. Her trim, blue serge suit, with a feminine white bustle blouse beneath her little blue turban which allows just a bit of the red hair to show beneath, the veil keeping it in perfect place, and the gray fox fur kept at a becoming angle, and the gray gloves, all further the impression of her perfect poise and control.

Another thing I noticed was that she refrained from manifesting any concern or superiority when the first witness against her walked under the testimony and was charged with perjury.

"I only want to vindicate myself in this court," she said. "I don't want anyone else to suffer on my account."

AT THE MOVIES

CAPITOL

The first feature length comedy, "Three Ages," to be made with Buster Keaton as the star, is the best work of this ingenious young comedian. "Three Ages," playing at the Capitol theatre Monday, is replete with laughs and thrills and establishes Keaton permanently in big full length feature comedies.

In "Three Ages" Buster springs with agility from side splitting exposure of life as it was in the cave man era to an hilarious explanation of life as it was in the brilliant reign of triumphant Rome. From Rome he carries us forward to our own age where he enjoys himself in a keen satire of the modern world never losing sight, however, of the humorous, the pathetic, the uproarious touches with which modern life is full.

"Three Ages" has a cast of more than two thousand people in several of the massive scenes staged in a duplication of the age-old Colosseum in Rome. This Colosseum set is said to have cost a huge sum and is the largest set ever constructed.

MODERN DOCTOR VS. QUACK

Scientific Progress is Rapidly Driving the Charlatans Out of the Field.

When the doctor gently chides the patient who has trusted vitally valuable time chasing the latest advertised panacea, the victim always has a "come-back." He—or, more often, she—retorts that the medical profession is always opposed to new methods of treatment. There is no denying the fact that ancient and medieval medicine was narrow and conservative in its attitude. At that time medicine was not a science, but a more or less imperfect art. It attracted, it is true, many brilliant minds, but it also had in its ranks a large preponderance of mystics and charlatans.

What we know today as the science of medicine is of recent growth. The application of modern scientific methods to the study of the human body and its processes has produced results as far-reaching in their scope as any ever achieved in other fields of human endeavor. However, by employing the methods of the twentieth century both to the study of medicine and to the organization of the medical profession, charlatanism and mysticism have become the exception instead of the rule in medicine. The modern medical quack and faddist is but an excrement. The result of all this has been to raise enormously the standard of the collective judgment of the medical profession. A careful review of modern medicine will show that in not one instance has the mass judgment of physicians been misled in condemning methods of treatment that have failed to meet the requirements demanded by the doctor of today.

PYGMIES AVERAGE 5 FEET

Wherever Found, They Possess Certain Striking Resemblances—Neglect Agriculture.

There are certain popular errors concerning the race of undersized men and women known as pygmies. Usually, travelers have measured the most diminutive specimens, and thus an exaggerated idea of their smallness has been produced. The average stature of the pygmies that have been measured is about four feet eight inches, but the best authorities in anthropology say that the real average limit of stature is five feet. Some are taller than that.

The pygmies have been found in eight or ten different places in Central Africa, but wherever found they possess certain striking resemblances.

The plant furnishing the covering for their huts is the same in the widely separated regions visited by Stanley and others, and the shape of the huts, a rough hemisphere, is the same.

All the pygmies are alike characterized by neglect of agriculture, by the use of poisoned arrows, and by the absence of centralized tribal organization.—Kansas City Times.

Trip Through New Guinea Costly.

New Guinea is a rough country to travel in—absolutely virgin jungle, without even a path other than the knife-cut paths carved out of the wall of vegetation that covers the greater part of the island. And it is a costly thing to travel through the jungle, for everything you are likely to wear, eat and use on the trip must be carried with you on the backs of your native porters; the jungle being innocent of even the poorest sort of store or shop. Man transportation is expensive, too, and a moderate estimate for the cost of a tour inland by two white men and thirty native carriers is not less than $500 a month. The lonely white man can travel in most countries; in New Guinea he is unknown. Arctic exploration is not more strenuous than a journey through the interior of New Guinea.—Adventure Magazine.

Found Wrangel Island in 1857.

The first authentic account concerning Wrangel Island, which has been attracting so much international interest, was from Captain Bong, master of the American whaling barque Nile, who in the summer of 1857 on a whaling voyage, named this land Wrangel land, after Baron Wrangel, and two of the headlands he named after one of his crew named Thomas, this man being the first to see the island.

The promontory Hawaii he named after the island, where in winter, in the harbor of Honolulu, the whalers made their rendezvous there to outfit for another season. These names are today on the charts of Wrangel Island.

August 12, 1881, Capt. Calvin Cooper, commanding the United States revenue steamship Corwin, landed and took possession of Wrangel land in the name of the United States of America.

What the World Is Doing

AS SEEN BY POPULAR MECHANICS MAGAZINE

Air Chamber Saves Divers Stricken at Work

As a first-aid appliance to save the lives of divers stricken at work, a large steel tank, in which they are placed, is filled with compressed air to break up and drive out bubbles of gas that cause them to become paralyzed or unconscious. The pressure is started at 30 pounds and increased or decreased as the patient needs it. Even though a constant supply of air is pumped below to a diver at work, the great weight of the water and too long periods under seas frequently overcome him, making quick action necessary to prevent his death.

Animal So Small It Lives in a Drop of Water

So tiny that it can be seen only by aid of a magnifying glass, an animal, heretofore unknown, has been discovered by an eastern scientist. By means of whiplash strokes of hairlike projections covering its body it can move rapidly about in a drop of water. The little creature feeds chiefly on germs and other animals living in the water. It measures about one two-hundredths of an inch long and is less than one-fourth as wide.

Pacific's Bottom Is Charted by Timing Sound Waves

Charting the bottom of the Pacific ocean between United States and Australia is the task of a navy cruiser using a delicate apparatus to measure the time required for sound to pass from the surface of the water to the ocean's bed and return. Records are taken every five miles while the boat is moving. Knowing the speed of sound through water and the time elapsing between sending and returning of a signal serves to compute the depth.

Safety Seat Prevents Falls While Washing Windows

For preventing falls while washing windows in the home, a safety seat has been made which swings on two chains attached to hooks in the window frames. A strap stretched between the chains supports the worker's back in comfort, at the same time acting as a guard against loss of balance, leaving the body free for movements required in the cleaning.

Basket on Pole Hives Bees Safely

A Wisconsin beekeeper, whose general farm work allows very little time for capturing the swarms that escape his apiary, has found the method illustrated both easy and quick. The device used for the work, he claims, has saved him many hours of labor as well as numerous painful stings.

The device is simple to make. It consists of a circular rim and a supporting fork made of 3/4-in. iron rod, and a cone-shaped screen-wire basket attached to the rim as shown. A stout cane sapole is used for a handle, making the device light and easy to handle.

When the bees swarm, they usually alight in one of the trees of the orchard, and often at such a height that it is almost impossible to capture them. As soon as the swarm is located and fairly settled, the basket is raised under the swarm and shaken so that most of the bees will drop into it. Of course, many bees escape but they will return to the swarm and cluster on the outside of the basket. When all is quiet again, the basket is lowered in front of an empty hive and the bees are induced to enter their new home without much trouble.

HOLIHAN BODY TO BE CLAIMED BY RELATIVES

Disposition of the Body Awaits the Arrival of Relatives from Aberdeen, S. D.

CORONER'S VERDICT

Arrangements for the burial of James H. Holihan, who committed suicide in his office here, will not be made until after the arrival of a member of the family, George Woolworth, a brother-in-law from Aberdeen, S. D. He is coming by way of Jamestown and will reach the city late tonight. It is understood he will take the body to Aberdeen for burial.

Communication with the relatives was established through the Elks lodge of which Mr. Holihan was a member. The local lodge notified the members of the Aberdeen lodge to notify relatives, it being desired by the local authorities to see that notification of the death of Mr. Holihan went to his aged mother in Aberdeen through relatives or sympathetic lodge members. She was not to be informed of the manner of death. Effort was being made to establish communication with a brother of Mr. Holihan.

The body of the deceased lay in Webb Undertaking Parlors today, following the inquest held late yesterday afternoon.

Coroner's Jury Verdict. The jury arrived at an inevitable verdict of suicide. Witnesses included R. D. Hoskins, Chief of Police, Martinson, Deputy Sheriff, Kater and Dr. F. B. Strauss.

The story of how Mr. Holihan's body was found after his wife was broken into was related. He was lying on the bed in the sleeping apartment he had in the office, partially clothed, with a bullet wound in the right temple and a .32 calibre automatic revolver clutched tightly in his right hand, which had fallen to one side. The imprint of the gun was on the fingers so tightly was it clutched.

There were no lights burning in the room. The time of death still is held by authorities to have been Wednesday night. One store in this city reported that a telephone call was received Thursday from a man whose voice appeared to be that of Mr. Holihan, but he gave no name. No one has been found who saw him later than Wednesday afternoon.

The coroner's jury was composed of W. S. Rohrer, S. A. Floren and Claire Derby.

Death Casts Gloom. The death of Mr. Holihan, who was a cheerful figure in the city, cast a general pall of gloom. The suicide is generally attributed to poor health and perhaps business worries. He had complained lately of stomach troubles.

A letter left in his office, addressed to Dr. C. C. Hibbs, related to business matters but was not in the nature of a farewell note. It was indicated from the letter that Mr. Holihan had contemplated suicide for at least three weeks.

Dr. Hibbs, who knew Mr. Holihan very well, said that he believed he had been in the real estate business in this city for at least 12 years, and had previously come into this country selling insurance.

Mr. Holihan was a manufacturing chemist and formerly owned a drug store in South Dakota. He had obtained a South Dakota pharmacist's license in the days when it was the hardest license in the country to get from the standpoint of professional qualifications. Dr. Hibbs said Mr. Holihan had been married in Iowa when a young man and the death of his wife affected him greatly. He was very kind to his aged mother, who lives in Aberdeen.

He was known as a cheerful, honest and generous to a fault, his many friends declared. During the war he served the government, being detailed on many missions of more or less of a secret service nature, it is understood.

He was a member of the Elks and Knights of Columbus.

To Whom It May Concern: I used the Ratekin Lignite Grate in my furnace last winter, and heartily recommend it as a necessity, especially for burning Lignite coal. It saves coal by providing complete combustion, giving more heat by giving a draft of air thru the coal and burning the gas which is a large per cent of the heat value, which without the grate is drawn off thru the chimney as complete waste. I am more than satisfied with the grate, and if I could not obtain another one would not part with it at any price.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

STRONG MEN

Why marvel at the engineering skill and power displayed by the ancient Egyptians in moving the big stones for the pyramids? In Chicago, the other day they moved a seven-story building 85 feet, in widening a street. The building weighs 15 million pounds.
While the movers were transporting the big structure at the rate of four feet an hour, its elevators continued operating, and running water, telephone and electric service were maintained as usual.
"Some job!" will be the average man's comment. And he's right.

Dead men helped move the big building in Chicago, for probably nine-tenths of the mechanical "tricks" employed in the moving were worked out by former generations, long since gone back to the dust.

The inventors of the lifting jack, the principle of rollers, ropes, cables, block and tackle and windlass—all these inventors helped move the Chicago building. So did many other men—including the creators of the steam engine and the patient intellectuals that slowly trained men to work together on big undertakings.

Without all these forerunners, the Chicago building couldn't have been moved an inch.

Economists have an expression, "the dead hand"—the process of men continuing their work in this life, long after their death, by their discoveries and accomplishments which they bequeath to generations that follow them.

The principle of "the dead hand" operates all through our daily lives. We puff with vanity as we observe our accomplishments and modestly admit that we're the mightiest generation ever. But we're really the harvesters of the effort of the many generations of the past. They sowed the seed for us, as we are doing for the future.

BEAUTY SKIN DEEP

Eva Tanguay says: "After having been on the stage since I was two years old, I couldn't help having wrinkles and sagging muscles. First I had six inches taken from my neck, then I had an incision to lift the muscles of my face. My eyebrows came next. All this took about four weeks. The most painful thing was having my face ironed—that means putting carbolic acid and oil on the skin to form blisters, which are then removed to leave the new skin underneath."
This verifies the old saying that beauty is only skin deep. But the knowledge, that beauty has tricks up its sleeves such as Eva describes, is enough to make a bachelor take the next board for a desert isle.

HYPNOTISM AN EDUCATION?

A student, sleeping with a telephone head-set over his ears, can be educated by radio. While he slumbers, knowledge comes through the phones, into his brain, and stays there almost as indelibly as lessons learned while awake. This apparently was proved at the naval air station, Pensacola, Fla. Now the navy assigns two medical officers to study the matter.

It suggests that the efficiency experts soon may make us get our education while asleep and keep us working all the time we're awake. Will hypnotism become a short-cut to education?

AMERICA'S RICHES

It'd take at least 300 billion dollars to buy the United States and everything in it. That figure is the new government estimate of our total national wealth.

If it were divided evenly, there'd be less than $3,000 for every man, woman and child. Another way of figuring it would be to reckon the national income of the American people (about 40 billion dollars a year) as being 6 per cent of national wealth. On which basis, national wealth is around 666 billion dollars, over twice the United States estimate.

SCARCITY OF RADIUM

In Fergana, Russian central Asia, mining engineers discover what looks like the largest deposit of radium in the world.

This doesn't attract as much attention as the average discovery of a new gold field. But it's a lot more important, for it may easily made radium available for every hospital in the world. Radium now is so scarce that it is obtainable for use against only a tenth of the cancer cases it could help.

AMERICAN ART

America's oldest school of fine arts reopens at New York University after being closed down for 51 years. This school—"chair" is a more accurate description—was founded in 1835. To an European or Asiatic artist, that's laughably modern.

We're too young a nation to have much real art. The art will come later, as a symptom of decay. Like plant life, which flowers and yields harvest just before it goes to seed.

American movie films are in great demand in South America, and the average price of admission is 16 cents. This cheering word is brought from below the equator by D. R. Lederman, film man.

Up here the public is being prepared for a $2 "super picture."

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

The days got colder and colder in Squeaky-Moo Land. Jack Frost and all his hairy helpers went through the corn-field, sweetening up the yellow pumpkins that grew there, and through grape arbores, coloring the grapes a rich purple and making them sweet too—and through the apple orchards, putting spice into each and every apple, so it would taste extra fine.

And as for the woods—they got such a painting as never was before with reds and russets and yellows and browns.

But Farmer Brown looked thoughtful.

Winter was coming and he was trying to decide which ones of the Squeaky-Moo folk to sell and which one to keep over the cold weather.

Now Mister Dodger knew what was going on in Farmer Brown's mind, and he was worried.

He said so to Nancy and Nick, and they talked it over and tried to think of something to do to help Farmer Brown out of his troubles, and the barnyard folk as well.

"Let's take a walk, and perhaps we can think better," suggested Mister Dodger, lighting his corn-silk pipe and putting on his corn-husk hat.

They walked through the corn-field and up the lane past the winter wheat field that Charlie and Bob, the big brown farm horses, had helped to plow. Then they went through the pasture where the cows were, and pretty soon they came to the creek.

And who should be there but Misses Duck and Mister Drake and all their fat children taking a bath.

"My, my! But we were dirty!" called Misses Duck. "We got into some black dirt down there in the hollow and we looked like chimney sweeps."

"Black dirt?" exclaimed Mister Dodger. "Show us exactly where it is, please!"

"Follow that little path," said Misses Duck, pointing with her bill. "And you'll come to it."

Away went the three of them, and pretty soon they came to the place. It wasn't a pretty place and nothing much grew there except weeds.

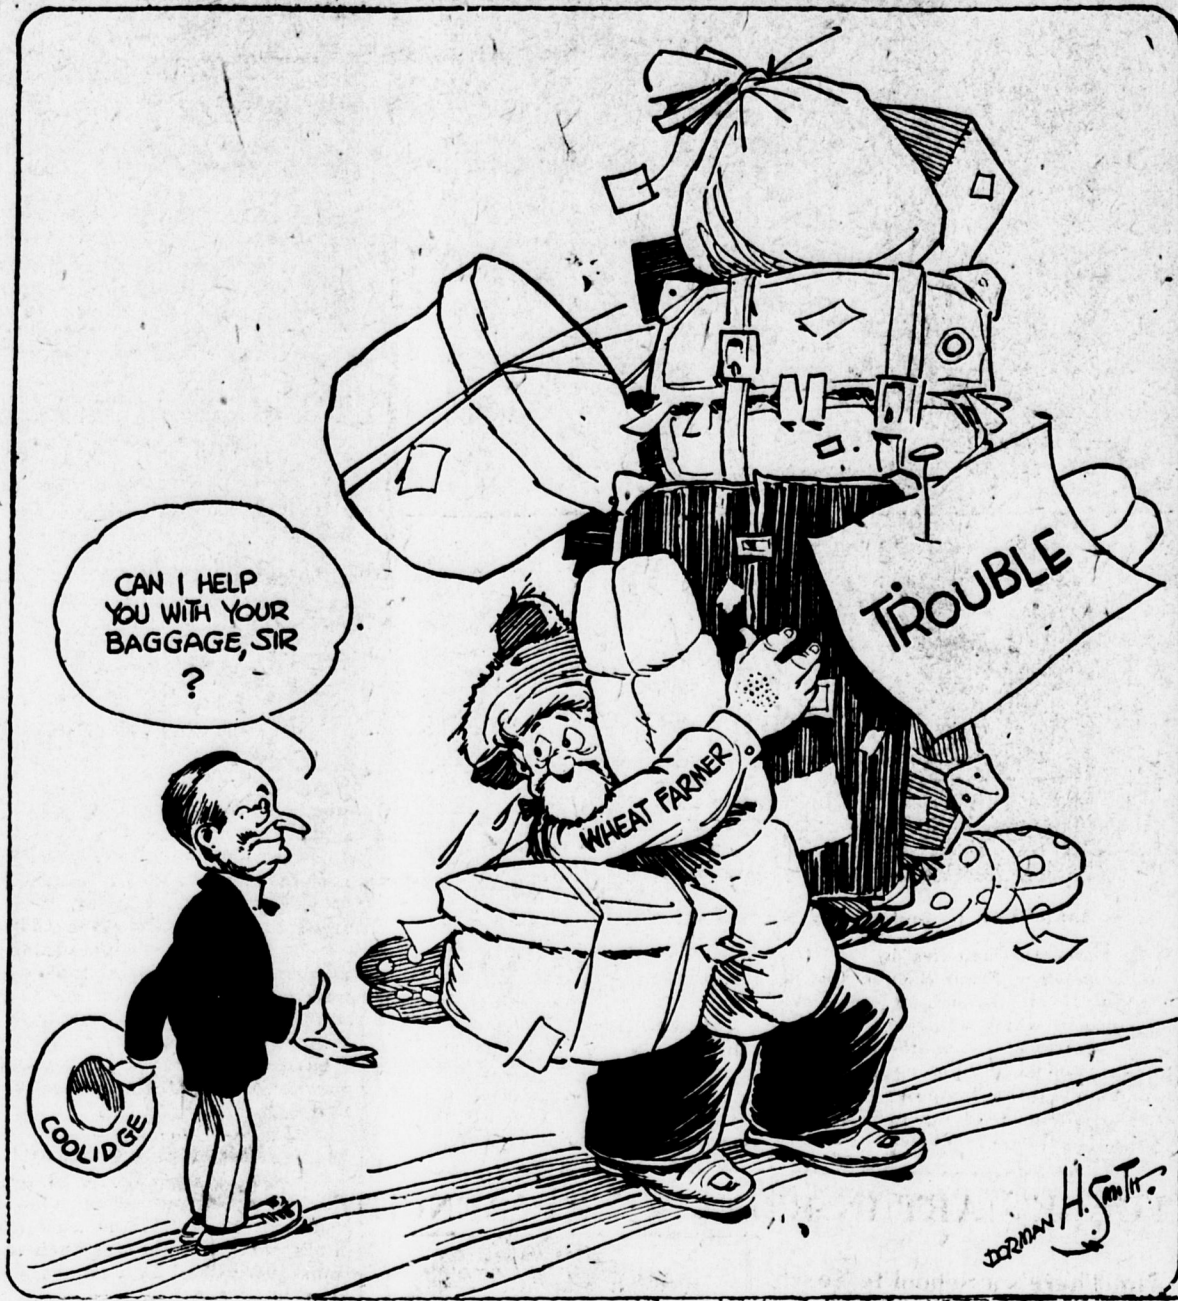

Mister Dodger got down on his knees and picked up some things that looked like black stones. "It's coal!" he cried. "We must let Farmer Brown know at once. Then he can sell it and get enough money to buy food for the Squeaky-Moo Land all winter."

Every word that Mister Dodger said came true. Farmer Brown kept every creature he had in case and comfort for winter to come.

LETTER FROM ALICE HAMILTON TO MRS. JOSEPH GRAVES HAMILTON

MOTHER DEAR:

First let me tell you the great news. Betty Stokley is going to marry a titled Englishman this fall and before the marriage she is going to be presented at court. She tells me that if I want to, she will try to have me presented with her.

Oh mother, don't you think I can? Just imagine what it would mean when I come home after being presented at court! Wouldn't I lord it over those Van Ressler girls who have always been rather Ritzy with me because father made his money instead of having it left to him?

I wouldn't exchange dear old dad for their gaudy, crusty old father if he were a king instead of a senile old curmudgeon who has to be almost carried from his house to his club and back again. Darling old dad is a man, but for all that I'm vain enough to want to put those snobs of Van Ressler girls in their places.

Karl laughs at me when I talk about them and he says all the nice things he can think of about the youngest one, and of course that makes me madder than ever, especially when Karl said, "You know, Alice, we inheritors of money have to stand up for our own class."

I know he doesn't mean to be uppish when he says that. He is just saying it to get my goat, for he has often told me that he would have been a much better man and of much more use to society if he had had to earn his own living. He is just wonderful to me over here. Never pays any more attention to any of these fascinating English girls than he does to little me.

I wish you would tell Leslie to write me. I haven't had a letter from her in ever so long. I suppose he is so taken up with that wonderful baby that she had no thought for anyone else.

The last time she wrote, she told me she was doing her own work. That seems funny for Les, doesn't it?

It just goes to show that you can do almost anything if you love a man, doesn't it? But you know what I told you, mother dear. I remember it shocked you greatly when I said it. It is just as easy to fall in love with a rich man as a poor one. I am almost sure I have proved that, mother dear, but until I am quite sure I will not tell you who he is.

Please cable me I can go to court with Betty, for it takes a long while to get the invitation untied from all the red tape which surrounds it.

Love to everybody,

ALICE.

REMOVAL OF FIRE HAZARDS BEING SOUGHT

Fire Prevention Committee, as Part of Week's Observance, Sends Out Letter

The fire prevention committee of the Association of Commerce is distributing questionnaires to merchants covering numerous situations. The information is to be gathered for the fire chief, to aid him in eliminating fire traps and to make for efficiency in fire fighting.

The fire department planned to send out the truck today with signs on it calling on owners to eliminate from their property all waste material and to remove all fire hazards.

As a part of fire prevention week the committee made the following statement:

"According to a conservative estimate at least 15,000 persons lost their lives in the United States last year as the result of fires. Considerably more than this number were seriously injured from the same cause."

"When we are told that most of these killed and injured were women and children, that they were sacrificed because of carelessness and that this toll is increasing each year, we realize that some definite steps should be taken to halt the destruction."

"From a humane standpoint therefore, if for no other, it is the duty of every sane person to exercise particular care to prevent fires. Furthermore, it is his duty to know what to do when he discovers that a fire has started. Many lives and much property would be saved annually if the person who first saw the fire had known how to call quickly for proper assistance. We all realize that the first few minutes after the fire starts is the most important time in which to fight it."

"When persons are assembled in one building such as a school, a public institution or factory it is advisable that fire drills be held. Arrangements should be made to conduct such drills at irregular intervals in order that the occupants will obtain the habit of answering the alarm whenever it is sounded. The frequency of these tests will depend upon the type of building and the number of persons occupying it."

"Experience has shown that employees and school children become interested in fire drills. They are anxious to do their part in establishing a time record for emptying their building or department. The drill will acquaint everyone of the proper exit to be used and will also assure an orderly clearance in the case of an actual fire."

"The present week, which is being observed as Fire Prevention Week, presents an excellent opportunity for stimulating interest in removal of fire hazards and for initiating fire drills in schools and other public buildings."

Bridge At Shields Has Been Accepted

Linton, N. D., Oct. 13.—The road and bridge work done by Fogle and Rykema, including the big bridge over Beaver Creek by Seaman Park has been inspected and accepted by the state and federal departments. The bridge at Shields, Sioux, built by Mr. Fogle and which was reported by some papers as turned down, has also been accepted and paid for, less a small sum off the contract price which, according to some of the papers, from the counties in question, will be held out temporarily until

This week's new Music

Garrison Sings a Rubinstein Melody—Two Chopin Studies by Cortot

Set a Russian to singing Russian—it takes a Chaliapin to interpret the racial shades in such songs as Rimsky-Korsakov's "Song of the Viking Guest" and Moussorgsky's setting of Goethe's satiric "Song of the Flea." This week they become available on a new double-faced record by the great Russian basso, a real occasion for all followers of Russian art.

To those (and they are many) who feel that Rubinstein's "Romance in E Flat" is the most melodious of his shorter piano pieces, this melody set as an English song, "Since First I Met Thee," and sung by Mabel Garrison on a new record comes as a pleasant surprise. To go with it, on the other side of this record, Miss Garrison sings the well-known "Gay Butterfly," brilliant waltz-song with delightful coloratura passages. Melody vibrates through Alfred Cortot's first double-faced record seal record of two famous piano studies of Chopin. As the first inevitably calls for more of such, turn the record and revel in it. "Etude in A Minor" has with true fancy been called "The Winter Wind," for its rush and flurry. "Impromptu in A Flat" might seem to be likened to a bubbling spring.

Two Heart Songs by Popular Tenors

"If I Knew You Then As I Know You Now" may sound vainly regretful, but it is in fact a fine tenor waltz-song, deservedly "popular," admirably sung in Charles Hart's clear tenor. On the other side of this new record Lewis James sings a touching number, "I Wish I Had Someone to Cry Over Me," with a fine sax interlude.

The plantain fruit of commerce is as been so tuncefully and adequately advertised, that Belle Baker, sometime "Bernhardt of Big Time Vaudeville," palms an ice pick and hints the composer in a new record she makes with the no uncertain orchestral assistance of The Virginians. "We Got the Year We Have No Bananas Blues" is a fitting introductory, and to go with it she selects "Jubilee Blues" for the other side.

Two Good Numbers by Pryor's Band

Everyone will like these pieces, particularly the children. "A Hunting Scene" has all the panoply that surrounded this sport in its more elaborate days—singing birds, hunting horns, baying hounds, galloping hofs, and a real hunting chorus of male voices. "The Mill in the Forest" is more peaceful and idyllic.

For the dance floor the Benson Orchestra of Chicago makes us a couple of new, for trot, records this week—"Foolish Child," with a sax crowing joyfully over some "pussy-in-the-well" effects—and "That Old Gang of Mine," equally good as a fox-trot and a song.

Two more honest-to-goodness tangos this week—"The Frivolous Girl" by International Novelty Orchestra, exotically Argentinian—and "Love-Longing," equally romantic. Don't feel you're a complete dancer until you have heard and mastered such dances as these.

The Benson, again, contribute a daintily serpentine fox-trot, "Mama Mamma," with a mean swing to it. On the other side Charles Dornberger and His Orchestra makes another wild one of "Oh, Sister, Ain't That Hot?"

THE PERIL OF EDISON-FORD'S MONEY SCHEME

Would Create More Paper Money Than Russia's Trillions But Add No Real Wealth.

SOME DANGEROUS FALLACIES

Would Remove Safe Restraint of Gold Basis and Open Way to Endless Issues of Paper Money.

How the United States would be swamped, under a greater volume of worthless paper money than has ruined Germany and Russia, by the Edison-Ford commodity currency plan is pointed out in the present article, concluding the reviews, prepared by the American Bankers Association, of the recent exposure of the folly of the whole scheme by William T. Foster, Director of the Pollack Foundation for Economic Research. Mr. Foster says:

"The supply of money," says Mr. Ford, is inadequate. There is more wealth than there is money to move it. He draws a vivid picture of the golden dam to the stream of prosperity. From a hundred quarters comes the demand for the government to speed up the printing presses, in order to crush the money monopoly, reduce interest rates, make it easier for everybody to get money."

"Inflating the currency, however, though it enables people to get more units of currency, does not enable them to obtain more purchasing power, and it does not reduce interest rates. In all her history Germany never had so much money or as high interest rates as in 1923. Money, unlike other forms of wealth, is not easier to obtain simply because the total supply is increased. On the contrary, increasing the supply of money ordinarily increases the demand for money, and interest rates depend not on supply, but on the relation between supply and demand."

A Dangerous Fallacy
"We are assured, however, that the Ford-Edison plan provides money for the farmer at virtually no expense to the government or to anyone else. All the government has to do is to print the money. What could be simpler? Here we come to the most dangerous fallacy in the whole project. It is dangerous because of the universal desire to get something for nothing."

"Here is the gist of the matter: Money will buy whatever is produced, not a particle more by any the abutments, which the commissioners of the counties thought were not up to specifications, have been tested out thoroughly.

BIG BEN BACKS UP
London, Oct. 13.—"Big Ben," London's famous timepiece, has been back one hour and now all England is changing its watches and alarm clocks. The reason? London has trick of alchemy, or legislation, or finance. The Russians, having multiplied their money 257,000 times, cannot pay as much with it as before. When we print more money there are no more goods for money to buy; not a single additional plow, or hat, or potato.

"Some of those who get the newly printed money can buy more goods than before; all other people can buy fewer goods than before, because their money has fallen off in purchasing power. Since there are no more plows, and hats, and potatoes, and so on, to distribute, if some people get more, others must get less."

"Inflation under the Edison plan is limited mainly because, on account of its indefensible discrimination, most groups of producers of goods and services are not allowed to participate. If all groups were included, as in fairness and in politics, they would have to be eventually, the possibilities of inflation would be vast."

The Deadly Spiral
"The total income of the United States is now in excess of fifty billions of dollars. The total money in circulation, including bank deposits subject to check, is not far from twenty-five billions. It follows that the annual production, if used as a basis for new issues on the Edison plan, could at once greatly increase the volume of money in circulation. Every addition to the monetary supply would tend to raise prices. The higher prices become, the higher would be the loan value of a given volume of goods since the size of the loans is based on values and not volume. The greater, therefore, would be the volume of new money that could be issued on the basis of a given annual production. Prices would become still higher; and so on up an endless spiral."

"Even in Russia, where financial printing presses hold the world's record for volume, where new issues of two hundred trillions of rubles per month stagger the imagination, the people complain that there is not enough money to do business with." Without the arbitrary restraint of the gold basis, and with Muscle Shoals industries, and sundry other kinds of industrialists constantly pressing their claims upon Congress, it is not at all certain that the United States, once well on the road to financial chaos, would in the end be outdone by Russia."

Mrs. Chalfin Heads Rebekah Lodges of Third District

Mrs. Mina Chalfin of Hazleton was elected president to succeed Mrs. C. E. Edquist of Mandan and the third annual district meeting of the Rebekah Lodges held here yesterday. Mrs. Warren of Flasher was named vice president and Mrs. Nellie Evans was re-elected secretary-treasurer. It was decided that Flasher should be the next meeting place for the district composed of Mandan, Wilton, Flasher, Hazleton, Assley, Wobek and Bismarck.

At this time initiation services were conducted by the Mandan team. Theodore Koffel spoke on "Education from the Cincinnati Sovereign National convention" and C. E. Green, former Grand Master, told of the progress being made in the building of the Odd Fellows home at Devils Lake. Miss Bessie Williams gave a beautiful vocal solo during the evening. Mrs. Lenora Holmes, of Inkster, president of the assembly, was present at the meeting.

Over 200 plates were laid at the banquet given by the Mandan members of the Bismarck council of Knights of Columbus at the Lewis and Clark hotel in Mandan last evening for members of the Mandan and Bismarck organizations.

The program for the occasion which was in honor of Columbus Day was appropriate to the occasion. P. P. Norton, toastmaster, gave a short review of the life of Columbus; Father Slag of Bismarck spoke on Christopher Columbus, the man of perseverance; and John Sullivan of the discussed the constitution of the United States and dangers threatening it, placing special emphasis upon the socialist special emphasis upon the socialist.

A pleasing part of the program were the musical numbers given. Mrs. V. J. La Rose and Miss Florence Connelly sang several solos and the Bismarck quartet gave several selections. A large number of the Bismarck K. of C. were present as well as Mandan members.

Federated Clubs Elect Officers

At the meeting of the seven Federated Clubs of Bismarck yesterday Mrs. W. W. Moyer was elected president; Mrs. D. T. Owen, vice president; Mrs. W. H. Bodenstein, recording secretary; Mrs. A. M. Schools Observe Columbus Day

Columbus Day was appropriately observed yesterday by the children in the schools of Bismarck. The children of the public schools gave short reports on Columbus, his discovery of America, and stories connected with the discovery of the new continent. At St. Mary's school the children held similar observances. They wrote essays about Christopher Columbus and in the afternoon enjoyed a few hours for holiday.

SHOW HEALTH PICTURES

More than 900 children in the schools of Mandan attended the lecture and saw the health pictures shown by Miss Anne Simpson, regional consultant of the United States health office in the Palace theater yesterday. Previous to showing the pictures Miss Simpson gave a short talk before the various groups of children on subjects of health and hygiene. Much interest was displayed by the children in the pictures entitled "How Disease is Spread," "How to Prevent Disease," "The Fly as a Disease Carrier," and "General Personal Hygiene." Mrs. Frank McGillic of Mandan, vice president of social hygiene, had charge of arrangement in Mandan.

MANY STARS IN "BLOSSOM TIME"

Teddy Webb (center), Gertrude Lang, Ion Willb and DeVenion Ramsay in "Blossom Time."

"Blossom Time," the delightful musical comedy full of smiles, tears and wondrous music, is booked at the Auditorium theater, for a limited engagement of one night, Tuesday, Oct. 16th, under the direction of the Messrs. Schubert. This rare musical gem cannot fail to outlive everything that has gone before it.

With immortal melodies by the famous composer, Franz Schubert, it is a relief to sit through this musical offering, in which one musical number is followed by another of even greater beauty. Sigmund Romberg, who adapted the composer's exquisite "Unfinished Symphony," "Ave Maria," "Moment Musical," "Serenade" and "Song of Love" deserves a great deal of credit for preserving the great master's melodious and musically charming. The story of the life of Franz Schubert, around which the plot of the play revolves, is full of love interest mingled with tears. Seats are now on sale for the engagement of "Blossom Time."

THERE'S ART IN BEING AN AUDIENCE

And There's a School to Teach This Art of Becoming a Well-Mannered, Intelligent Listener

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS.

NEA Service writer.

New York, Oct. 7.—Are you an intelligent listener?

When a performer is on the stage, do you refrain from giggling, rustling your program, or coughing at random?

Do you "soft-pedal" your conversation during a symphony?

Do you arrive on time and stay until the curtain falls or do you think it highly sophisticated to arrive after an entertainment has begun and quit before it does?

In other words, do you appreciate your responsibilities as an audience, and do you observe the fine points of theater etiquette?

Because you HAVE a responsibility, Mrs. Clara Tree Major insists, "We are quite as much an obligation on your part to be an intelligent audience as it is for a performer to be intelligent."

Mrs. Major has just been engaged by the Hecksher Foundation in New York to conduct classes for school children in the art of being an audience.

Art of Appreciation.

"Any musician will tell you how much easier it is to play well when one feels the sympathy of his listeners for he does feel it," she says.

"Any actor will tell you how in some cities audiences have a reputation of being so cold actors hate to appear there and never appear at their best, while other localities are so responsive that a mediocre cast will put forth its best efforts and raise its standard."

"It is by training and cultivation of the school children that we hope to raise the quality of audiences and thus to encourage greater artistic effort on the part of performers."

Mrs. Major hopes to put the matter aside into the discard.

Course on Theater.

"The tendency to idealize the performer because of his personality instead of because of what he can do is all wrong," she went on. "I want to teach children to appreciate good acting and real art whether it comes from the hero or the villain or the character woman."

Another feature of the course will be to tell children about the various plays and concerts that are presented in the Children's Theater of the Foundation, so they may have sufficient background to appreciate what they hear and see. Teachers of English and literature will co-operate in this.

Mrs. Willard Straight, New York society woman and philanthropist, has made it possible for the School of the Theater to offer two scholarships to students who make the greatest progress in the art of being appreciative.

the cooking and mashing of the potato.

Wash potatoes and pare thinly. Cut in uniform size. Drop in boiling water and cook uncovered until potatoes are tender when pierced with a fork. If the outside of the potato breaks and cools away before potatoes are tender in the center add cold water. This drives the heat to the center of the potato and stops cooking on the outside.

When tender drain and shake before an open door or window for a minute. Mash THOROUGHLY, keeping hot by the side of the fire. Mash and beat in butter, salt and pepper. When perfectly smooth, beat in milk. If a wire beater is used beat vigorously over the fire for one or two minutes. Serve at once. If the potatoes are mashed with a wooden masher, or put through a ricer beat in butter, milk and seasoning with a slotted spoon.

Some potatoes absorb more milk than others and as potatoes become older they take up more milk.

"New," unripe potatoes will not mash satisfactorily.

Start Book Drive To Fill Shelves of School Libraries

The children of the city of Bismarck and their parents are being asked by Supt. H. O. Saxvik to aid in the building up of libraries in the various grade schools and high school of the city. Because the libraries in the grade schools are almost without books appropriate for children attending the schools, this drive is being started, opening next Monday and continuing through the week.

Children who have juvenile books which they have enjoyed and would like to pass on to other children are asked to bring them to their teachers. If they are uncertain as to whether a book would be acceptable they are asked to telephone Principal Bullitt at the high school, phone 285, in regard to their donations. Adults who do not have children attending school but who have some books that they would like to present to the schools are invited to do so.

Books suitable for juveniles are descriptive of various historical events and characters, interesting books about natural science, good pieces of literature, biographies, autobiographies, travel, and every other type of book that would be read with interest by the boys and girls of the city is wanted.

Salvation Army Asks For Clothes

The Salvation Army workers have asked that everybody having old clothes which they can spare to send them to the barracks or call headquarters, for with the coming of cold weather the demand for old clothing has become so great that everything which had been on hand has been given away. A particular need is being felt for school children's clothes although almost any kinds of clothing can be used.

With immortal melodies by the famous composer, Franz Schubert, it is a relief to sit through this musical offering, in which one musical number is followed by another of even greater beauty. Signum Romberg, who adapted the composer's exquisite "Unfinished Symphony," "Ave Maria," "Moment Musical," "Serenade" and "Song of Love" deserves a great deal of credit for preserving the great master's melodious and musically charming. The story of the life of Franz Schubert, around which the plot of the play revolves, is full of love interest mingled with tears. Seats are now on sale for the engagement of "Blossom Time."

THERE'S ART IN BEING AN AUDIENCE

And There's a School to Teach This Art of Becoming a Well-Mannered, Intelligent Listener

BY HORIENSE SAUNDERS.

NEA Service writer.

New York, Oct. 7.—Are you an intelligent listener?

When a performer is on the stage, do you refrain from giggling, rustling your program, or coughing at random?

Do you soft-pedal your conversation during a symphony?

Do you arrive on time and stay until the curtain falls or do you think it highly sophisticated to arrive after an entertainment has begun and quit before it does?

In other words, do you appreciate your responsibilities as an audience, and do you observe the fine points of theater etiquette?

"Because you HAVE a responsibility," Mrs. Clare Tree Major insists. "It is quite as much an obligation on your part to be an intelligent audience as it is for a performer to be intelligent."

Mrs. Major has just been engaged by the Hecksher Foundation in New York to conduct classes for school children in the art of being an audience.

Art of Appreciation.
"Any musician will tell you how much easier it is to play well when one feels the sympathy of his listeners—for he does feel it," she says.

"Any actor will tell you how in some cities audiences have a reputation of being so cold actors have to appear there and never appear at their best, while other localities are so responsive that a mediocre cast will put forth its best efforts and raise its standard."

With a zeal, potatoes roasted with the meat are served.

Mashed potatoes are served with steaks or roasts or meats cooked in such a way that gravies are made.

TWICE BAKED POTATOES
Four smooth medium-sized potatoes, 2 tablespoons butter, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 4 tablespoons hot milk, grated cheese, paprika.

Wash and scrub potatoes. Bake an hour in a moderately hot oven. Remove from oven and cut a slice from one end of each potato. Scoop out inside and mash in a hot bowl. Add butter, salt, pepper and milk and beat with a slotted spoon until light. The amount of milk varies somewhat with the age and variety of the potato. Fill potato shells with mixture, sprinkle with grated cheese and a dash of paprika and put in a hot oven to melt and brown the cheese. Serve immediately.

POTATOES ROASTED WITH MEAT
Wash and pare potatoes. If very large cut in half. Prop in boiling water and boil, uncovered, 15 minutes. Drain and plunge in cold water. Drain. Put in roaster with meat, sprinkle with salt and pepper and roast 30 to 40 minutes. Baste with drippings in roaster. The potatoes should brown while roasting, but if all the time is needed for the meat brown the potatoes under the flame of a gas stove after they are tender and well basted.

When paring potatoes take as thin a paring as possible. The most of the mineral salts lie close under the skin and these are lost if a thick paring is taken.

MASHED POTATOES

A family of two can use five bushels of potatoes during the winter months. This means two persons with average appetites, eating normally. A large family will, of course, store vegetables in proportion to the size of the family and their needs.

Baked potatoes are an excellent food. All the valuable mineral salts are preserved in the baking. In the fall when potatoes are perfectly ripe and freshly dug there is no better way of serving them than baked in their jackets.

A small stiff brush is most convenient to use for scrubbing potatoes. If the skins are carefully washed and scrubbed they are the best part of the potato to many persons.

Choose smooth medium-sized potatoes, scrub until perfectly clean. Put in a hot oven and bake an hour. If the skins are preferred tender and soft to crisp, rub potatoes with butter when putting in the oven. Serve baked potatoes immediately in an uncovered vegetable dish.

the cooking and mashing of the potato.

Wash potatoes and pare thinly. Cut in uniform size. Drop in boiling water and cook uncovered until potatoes are tender when pierced with a fork. If the outside of the potato breaks and cools away before potatoes are tender in the center add cold water. This drives the heat to the center of the potato and stops cooking on the outside.

When tender drain and shake before an open door or window for a minute. Mash THOROUGHLY, keeping hot by the side of the fire. Mash and beat in butter, salt and pepper. When perfectly smooth beat in milk. If a wire beater is used beat vigorously over the fire for one or two minutes. Serve at once. If the potatoes are mashed with a wooden masher or put through a ricer beat in butter, milk and seasoning with a slotted spoon.

Some potatoes absorb more milk than others and as potatoes become older they take up more milk.

"New" unripe potatoes will not mash satisfactorily.

Start Book Drive To Fill Shelves of School Libraries

The children of the city of Bismarck and their parents are being asked by Supt. H. O. Saxvik to aid in the building up of libraries in the various grade schools and high school of the city. Because the libraries in the grade schools are almost without books appropriate for children attending the schools, this drive is being started, opening next Monday and continuing through the week.

Children who have juvenile books which they have enjoyed and would like to pass on to other children are asked to bring them to their teachers. If they are uncertain as to whether a book would be acceptable they are asked to telephone Principal Bulittz at the high school, phone 285, in regard to their donations. Adults who do not have children attending school but who have some books that they would like to present to the schools are invited to do so.

Books suitable to juveniles are desired. Stories of various historical events and characters, interesting books about natural science, good pieces of literature, biographies, autobiographies, travel, and every other type of book that would be read with interest by the boys and girls of the city is wanted.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

STRONG MEN
Why marvel at the engineering skill and power displayed by the ancient Egyptians in moving the big stones for the pyramids? In Chicago, the other day they moved a seven-story building 85 feet, in widening a street. The building weighs 15 million pounds.
While the movers were transporting the big structure at the rate of four feet an hour, its elevators continued operating, and running water, telephone and electric service were maintained as usual.
"Some job!" will be the average man's comment. And he's right.

Dead men helped move the big building in Chicago, for probably nine-tenths of the mechanical "tricks" employed in the moving were worked out by former generations, long since gone back to the dust.

The inventors of the lifting jack, the principle of rollers, ropes, cables, block and tackle and windlass—all these inventors helped move the Chicago building. So did many other men—including the creators of the steam engine and the patient intellects that slowly trained men to work together on big undertakings.

Without all these forerunners, the Chicago building couldn't have been moved an inch.

Economists have an expression, "the dead hand"—the process of men continuing their work in this life, long after their death, by their discoveries and accomplishments which they bequeath to generations that follow them.
The principle of "the dead hand" operates all through our daily lives. We puff with vanity as we observe our accomplishments and modestly admit that we're the mightiest generation ever. But we're really the harvesters of the effort of the many generations of the past. They sowed the seed for us, as we are doing for the future.

BEAUTY SKIN DEEP
Eva Tanguay says: "After having been on the stage since I was two years old, I couldn't help having wrinkles and sagging muscles. First I had six inches taken from my neck, then I had an incision to lift the muscles of my face. My eyebrows came next. All this took about four weeks. The most painful thing was having my face ironed—that means putting carbolic acid and oil on the skin to form blisters, which are then removed to leave the new skin underneath."
This verifies the old saying that beauty is only skin deep. But the knowledge, that beauty has tricks up its sleeves such as Eva describes, is enough to make a bachelor take the next board for a desert isle.

HYPNOTISM AN EDUCATION?
A student, sleeping with a telephone head-set over his ears, can be educated by radio. While he slumbers, knowledge comes through the phones, into his brain, and stays there almost as indelibly as lessons learned while awake. This apparently was proved at the naval air station, Pensacola, Fla. Now the navy assigns two medical officers to study the matter.
It suggests that the efficiency experts soon may make us get our education while asleep and keep us working all the time we're awake. Will hypnotism become a short-cut to education?

AMERICA'S RICHES
It'd take at least 300 billion dollars to buy the United States and everything in it. That figure is the new government estimate of our total national wealth.
If it were divided evenly, there'd be less than $3,000 for every man, woman and child. Another way of figuring it would be to reckon the national income of the American people (about 40 billion dollars a year) as being 6 per cent of national wealth. On which basis, national wealth is around 666 billion dollars, over twice the United States estimate.

SCARCITY OF RADIUM
In Fergana, Russian central Asia, mining engineers discover what looks like the largest deposit of radium in the world.
This doesn't attract as much attention as the average discovery of a new gold field. But it's a lot more important, for it may easily make radium available for every hospital in the world. Radium now is so scarce that it is obtainable for use against only a tenth of the cancer cases it could help.

AMERICAN ART
America's oldest school of fine arts reopens at New York University after being closed down for 51 years. This school—"chair" is a more accurate description—was founded in 1835. To an European or Asiatic artist, that's laughably modern.

We're too young a nation to have much real art. The art will come later, as a symptom of decay. Like plant life, which flowers and yields harvest just before it goes to seed.

GREAT DEMAND
American movie films are in great demand in South America, and the average price of admission is 16 cents. This cheering word is brought from below the equator by D. B. Lederman, a man.
Up here the picture is being prepared for a $2 "super" picture.

SURPLUS INCREASES
A New York financial editor estimates that the cash surplus of the Ford Motor Co. has been increasing at the rate of $1000 a minute.
Do you remember the old-fashioned days when "Brewster's Millions" seemed impossible because Brewster had to spend $2 a minute for a year?

Tried to stop world series betting in New York. Betting was six to one they couldn't.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

The days got colder and colder in Squeaky-Moo Land. Jack Frost and all his fairy helpers went through the corn-field, sweetening up the yellow pumpkins that grew there, and through grape arbors, coloring the grapes a rich purple, and making them sweet too—and through the apple orchards, putting spice into each winter apple, so it would taste extra fine.

And as for the woods—they got such a painting as never was before with reds and russets and yellows and browns.

But Farmer Brown looked thoughtful.

Winter was coming and he was trying to decide which one of the Squeaky-Moo folk to sell and which one to keep over the cold weather.

Now Mister Dodge knew what was going on in Farmer Brown's mind, and he was worried.

He said so to Nancy and Nick, and they talked it over and tried to think of something to do to help Farmer Brown out of his troubles, and the barnyard folk as well.

"Let's take a walk, and perhaps we can think better," suggested Mister Dodge, lighting his corn-cob pipe and putting on his corn-bush hat.

They walked through the corn-field and up the lane past the winter wheat field that Charlie and Bob, the big brown farm horses, had helped to plow. Then they went through the pasture where the cows were, and pretty soon they came to the creek.

And who should be there but Mister Duck and Mister Drake and all their fat children taking a bath.

"My, my! But we were dirty!" called Mister Duck. "We got into some black dirt down there in the hollow and we looked like chimney sweeps."

"Black dirt!" exclaimed Mister Dodge. "Show us exactly where it is, please!"

"Follow that little path," said Mister Duck, pointing with her bill. "And you'll come to it."

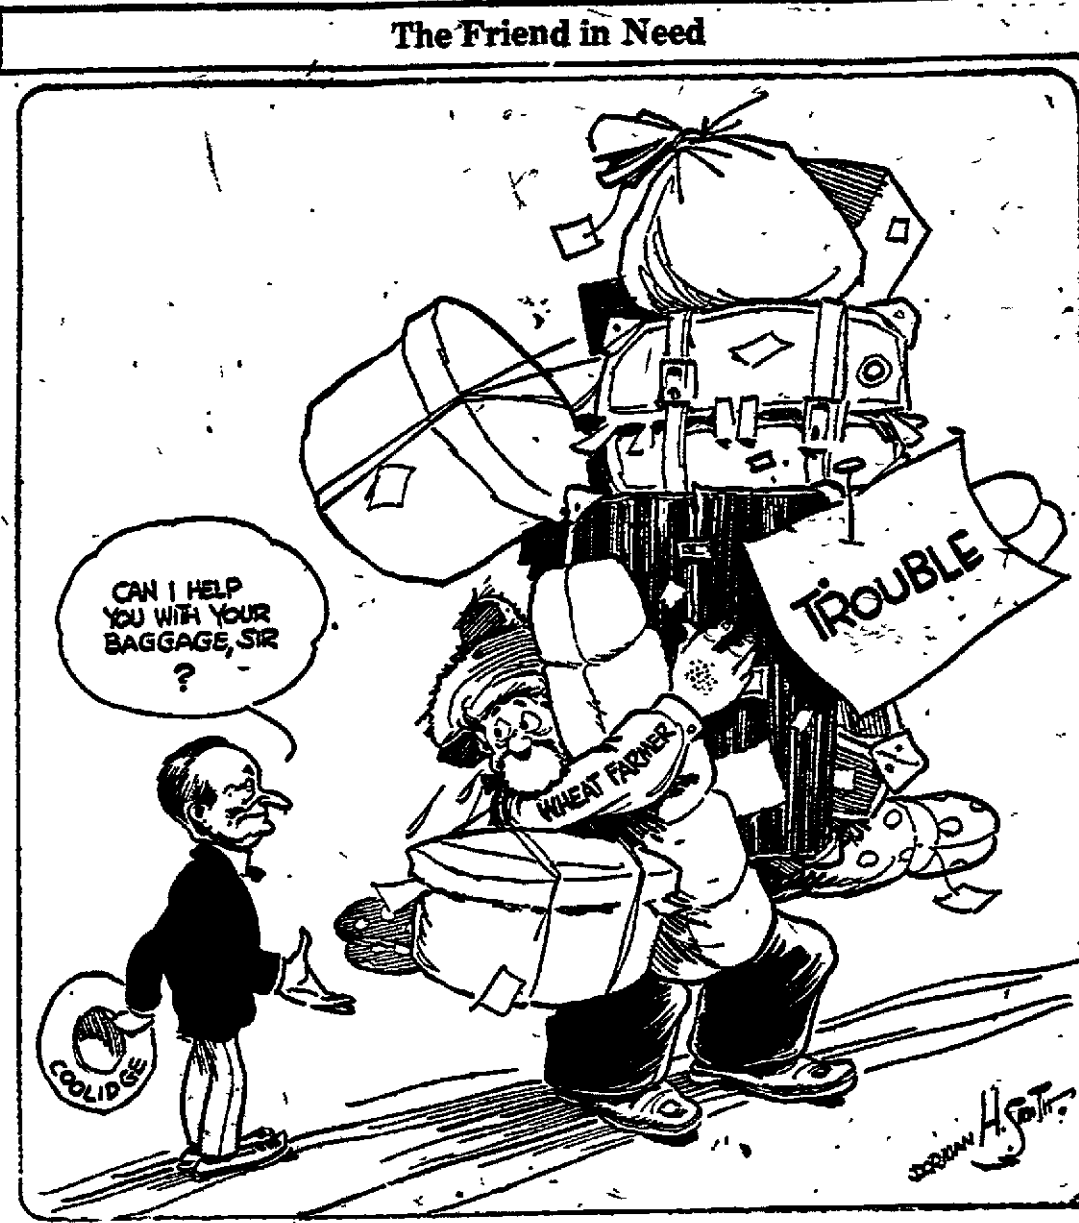

Away went the three of them, and pretty soon they came to the place. It wasn't a pretty place and nothing much grew there except weeds.

Mister Dodge got down on his knees and picked up some things that looked like black stones. "It's coal!" he cried. "We must let Farmer Brown know at once. Then he can sell it and get enough money to buy food for the Squeaky-Moo Landers all winter!"

Every word that Mister Dodge said came true. Farmer Brown kept every creature he had in ease and comfort for months to come.

LETTER FROM ALICE HAMILTON TO MRS. JOSEPH GRAVES HAMILTON

MOTHER DEAR:
First let me tell you the great news. Betty Stodley is going to marry a titled Englishman this fall and before the marriage she is going to be presented at court. She tells me that if I want to, she will try to have me presented with her.

Oh mother, don't you think I can? Just imagine what it would mean when I come home after being presented at court! Wouldn't I lord it over those Van Rensselaer girls who have always been rather Ritzzy with me because father made his money instead of having it left to him.

I wouldn't exchange dear old dad for their gouty, crusty old father if he were a king instead of a senile old curmudgeon who has to be almost carried from his house to his club and back again. Darling old dad is a man, but for all that I'm vain enough to want to put those snobs of Van Rensselaer girls in their places.

Karl laughs at me when I talk about him and he says all the nice things he can think of about the youngest one, and of course that makes me madder than ever, especially when Karl said, "You know, Alice, we inheritors of money have to stand up for our own class."

I know he doesn't mean to be unkind when he says that. He is just saying it to get my goat, for he has often told me that he would have been a much better man and of much more use to society if he had had to earn his own living. He is just wonderful to me over here. Never pays any more attention to any of those fascinating English girls than he does to little me.

I wish you would tell Leslie to write me. I haven't had a letter from him in ever so long. I suppose he is so taken up with that wonderful baby that she had no thought for anyone else.

The last time she wrote, she told me she was doing her own "work." That seems funny for Les, doesn't it? It just goes to show that you can do almost anything if you love a man, doesn't it? But you know what I told you, mother dear. I remember it shocked you greatly when I said it. It is just as easy to fall in love with a rich man as a poor one. I am almost sure I have proved that, mother dear, but until I am quite sure I will not tell you who he is.

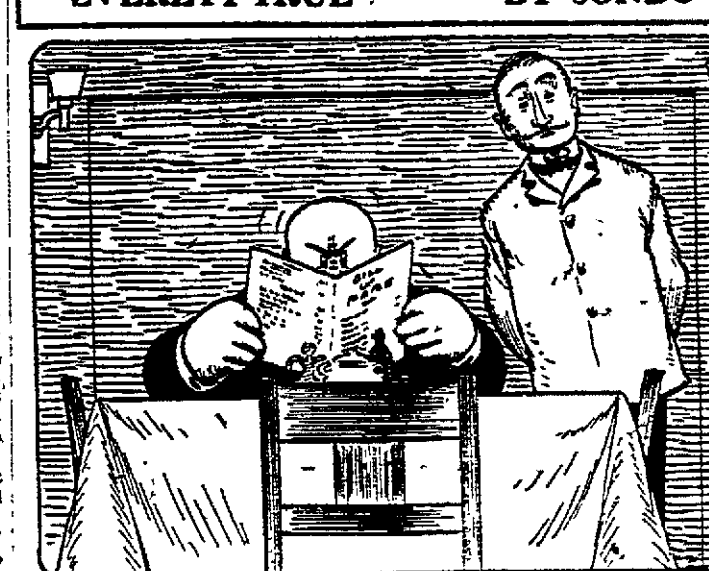

Please cable me I can go to court with Betty, for it takes a long while to get the invitation untied from all the red tape which surrounds it.

Love to everybody,
ALICE.

REMOVAL OF FIRE HAZARDS BEING SOUGHT

Fire Prevention Committee, as Part of Week's Observance, Sends Out Letter

The fire prevention committee of the Association of Commerce is distributing questionnaires to merchants covering numerous situations. The information is to be gathered for the fire chief, to aid him in eliminating fire traps and to make for efficiency in fire fighting.

The fire department planned to send out the truck today with signs on it calling on owners to eliminate from their property all waste material and to remove all fire hazards.

As a part of fire prevention week the committee made the following statement:

"According to a conservative estimate at least 15,000 persons lost their lives in the United States last year as the result of fires. Considerably more than this number were seriously injured from the same cause."

"When we are told that most of these killed and injured were women and children, that they were sacrificed because of carelessness and that this toll is increasing each year, we realize that some definite steps should be taken to halt the destruction."

"From a humane standpoint therefore, if for no other, it is the duty of every sane person to exercise particular care to prevent fires. Furthermore, it is his duty to know what to do when he discovers that a fire has started. Many lives and much property would be saved annually if the person who first saw the fire had known how to call quickly for proper assistance. We all realize that the first few minutes after the fire starts is the most important time in which to fight it."

"When persons are assembled in one building such as a school, a public institution or factory it is advisable that fire drills be held. Arrangements should be made to conduct such drills at irregular intervals to obtain the habit of answering the alarm whenever it is sounded. The frequency of these tests will depend upon the type of building and the number of persons occupying it."

"Experience has shown that employees and school children become interested in fire drills. They are anxious to do their part in establishing a time record for employees, their building or department. Fire drills will acquaint everyone of the proper exit to be used and will also assure an orderly clearance in the case of an actual fire."

"The present week, which is being observed as Fire Prevention Week, presents an excellent opportunity for stimulating interest in removal of fire hazards and for initiating fire drills in schools and other public buildings."

This week's new Music

Garrison Singer
Rubinstein Melody
Two Chopin Studies
by Carlet

Set a Russian to singing Russian—it takes a Chaliapin to interpret the racial shades in such songs as Rimsky-Korsakov's "Song of the Viking Guest" and Moussorgsky's setting of Goethe's satire "Song of the Flea." This week they become available on a new double-faced record by the great Russian basso, a real occasion for all followers of Russian art.

To those (and they are many) who feel that Rubinstein's "Romance in E Flat" is the most melodious of his shorter piano pieces, this melody set as an English song, "Since First I Met Thee," and sung by Mabel Garrison on a new record comes as a pleasant surprise. To go with it, on the other side of this record, Miss Garrison sings the well-known "Gay Butterfly," brilliant waltz-song with delightful coloratura passages. Melody whistles through Alfred Cortot's fast double-faced record of two of Chopin's piano studies of Chopin. As the first inevitably calls for more of such, turn the record and revel in it. "Etude in A Minor" has with true fancy been called "The Winter Wind," for its rush and swirl. "Impromptu in A Flat" might seemingly be likened to a bubbling spring.

Two Good Numbers by Pryor's Band

Everyone will like these pieces, particularly the children. "A Heaving Heave" has all the panoply that surrounded this sport in its more elaborate days—singing, birds, hunting horns, baying hounds, galloping hoofs, and a real hunting chorus of male voices. "The Mill in the Forest" is more peaceful and idyllic.

For the dance floor the Benson Orchestra of Chicago makes a record of new dance records this week—"Foolish Child," with a sax-crowling joyfully over some "pussy-in-the-well" effects; and "That Old Gang of Mine," equally good as a fox-trot and a song.

Two more honest-to-goodness tangos this week—"The Frivolous Girl" by International Novelty Orchestra, exotically Argentine—and "Love-Longing," equally romantic. Don't feel you're a complete dancer until you have heard and mastered such dances as these.

The Bensons, again, contribute a daintily serpentine foxtrot, "Mya Masa Mama," with a man's swing to it. On the other side Charles Dornberger and His Orchestra makes another wild one of "Oh, Sister, Ain't That Hot?"

THE PERIL OF EDISON-FORD'S MONEY SCHEME

Would Create More Paper Money Than Russia's Trillions but Add No Real Wealth

SOME DANGEROUS FALLACIES

Would Remove Safe Restraint of Gold Basis and Open Way to Endless Issues of Paper Money.

How the United States would be swamped, under a greater volume of worthless paper money than has ruined Germany and Russia, by the Edison-Ford commodity currency plan is pointed out in the present article, concluding the review, prepared by the American Bankers Association, of the recent exposure of the folly of the whole scheme by William T. Foster, Director of the Pollack Foundation for Economic Research. Mr. Foster says:

"The supply of money, says Mr. Ford, is inadequate. There is more wealth than there is money to move it. He draws a vivid picture of the golden dam to the stream of prosperity. From a hundred quarters comes the demand for the government to speed up the printing presses, in order to crush the money monopoly, to reduce interest rates, and make it easier for everybody to get money."

"Infating the currency, however, though it enables people to get more units of currency, does not enable them to obtain more purchasing power, and it does not reduce interest rates. In all her history Germany never had so much money or as high interest rates as in 1922. Money, unlike other forms of wealth, is not easier to obtain simply because the total supply is increased. On the contrary, increasing the supply of money ordinarily increases the demand for money, and interest rates depend not on supply, but on the relation between supply and demand."

A Dangerous Fallacy
"We are assured, however, that the Ford-Edison plan provides money for the farmer at virtually no expense to the government or to anyone else. All the government has to do is to print the money. What could be simpler? Here we come to the most dangerous fallacy in the whole project. It is dangerous because of the universal desire to get something for nothing. Here is the gist of the matter: Money will buy whatever is produced, not a particle more by any

The plantain fruit of commerce is as tuncefully and adequately described, that Belle Baker, sometime "Bernhardt of Big Time" Varietyville, palms an ice pick and hurls the composer in a new record she makes with the no uncertain orchestral assistance of The Virginians. "I've Got the Yea! We Have No Bananas Blues" is a fitting introductory, and to go with it she selects "Jubilee Blues" for the other side.

trick of alchemy, or legislation, or finance. The Russians, having multiplied their money 257,000 times, cannot buy as much with it as before. When we print more money there are no more goods for money to buy; not a single additional plow, or hat, or potato.

"Some of those who get the newly printed money can buy more goods than before; all other people can buy fewer goods than before, because their money has fallen off in purchasing power. Since there are no more plows, and hats, and potatoes, and so on, to distribute, if some people get more, others must get less."

"Infation under the Edison plan is limited mainly because, on account of its indefensible discrimination, most groups of producers of goods and services are not allowed to participate. If all groups were included, as in fairness and in politics, they would have to be eventually, the possibilities of inflation would be vast."

The Deadly Spiral

"The total income of the United States is now in excess of fifty billions of dollars. The total money in circulation, including bank deposits subject to check, is not far from twenty-five billions. It follows that the annual production, if used as a basis for new issues on the Edison plan, could at once greatly increase the volume of money in circulation. Every addition to the monetary supply would tend to raise prices. The higher prices became, the higher would be the loan value of a given volume of goods since the also of the loans is based on values and not volume. The greater, therefore, would be the volume of new money that could be issued on the basis of a given annual production. Prices would become still higher; and so on up an endless spiral."

"Even in Russia, where financial printing presses hold the world's record for volume, where new issues of two hundred trillions of rubles per month stagger the imagination, the people complain that there is not enough money to do business with. Without the arbitrary restraint of the gold basis, and with Muscle Shoals inflationists, and sundry other kinds of inflationists constantly pressing their claims upon Congress, it is not at all certain that the United States, once well on the road to financial chaos, would in the end be outstripped by Russia."

MIGHTY CASEY AGAIN TAKES LIMELIGHT

His Star Dimmed Temporarily by Babe Ruth, He Comes Back in Third Game

GIANTS ARE HAPPY

New York, Oct. 12.—Cast permanently, it would seem, in heroic mold, Casey Stengel—Casey the immortal—smashed the New York Giants to victory with a home run drive yesterday afternoon for the second time in three days of record breaking world's series strife with the Yankees.

Lashed into the right field bleachers of the Yankee Stadium in the seventh inning, Stengel's blow broke up a tense, thrilling hurling duel between Art Nehf southpaw star of the Giants, and "Sad Sam" Jones, of the Yankees, and gave the world's champions their solitary, but sufficient margin in a brilliant 1 to 0 triumph.

The greatest throng that ever paid its way into a baseball arena—65,000 frenzied fans were massed in the gigantic enclosure, while 30,000 more swirled about the entrance outside—saw Stengel deliver the climatic blow that gave John McGraw and his warriors a two to one advantage in the most stirring baseball drama of all time.

Answers Call Again

For a day, Stengel had stepped out of the line light while Babe Ruth rose to the pinnacle of fame with two circuit clouts that swept the Yankees to victory in the second game of the third successive title struggle between these Gotham rivals.

But yesterday "Old Casey" how-legged but lionhearted, knew again the call to glory that was his when his ninth inning home run gave the Giants their first triumph—and again he answered its summons.

Perhaps the setting was not so dramatic as in the first game, but that mattered not to Casey, for the result was just as effective and gave to the veteran a record that has no equal in world's series annals—the feat of winning two games with home runs in a single championship. Its nearest approach is the mark of "Home Run" Baker, who won two games for the old Athletics with circuit-blows, but in separate series, 1911 and 1912.

Stengel 2; Ruth 1

And so, stripping to its essentials the classic of 1923 in which the home run punch so far has played a monumental role, the score stands: Stengel two victories; Ruth one.

It was a heart breaking setback for Jones, melancholy moundsman of the Yankees, who pitched even more brilliantly than did his southpaw rival, Nehf, in triumph. And too, it was doubly disastrous for the Yankee machine for with defeat they lost, at least temporarily, the services of their star first baseman, Wally Pipp, who again wrenched his weakened right ankle in sliding to second in the seventh inning and was forced to leave the game.

Babe Gets Two Walks

Coming back in the eighth after that crushing blow, Jones displayed his mettle by striking out Baneroff and Groh in succession but he was withdrawn in favor of a pinch hitter in the Yankee half of that inning when Higgins directed his last desperate but futile attack. Joe Bush, victim of Stengel's homer in the first game held the Giants hitless in the ninth.

Facing the first real crisis of the series John McGraw played his ace, Nehf, and the nervy little southpaw came through with flying colors. His work was only slightly less effective than that of Jones. Three times he faced serious threats by the Yankees and on each occasion he rose to the emergency and turned back. In only one inning, the fifth, did the Yankees gather more than one hit off Nehf. He issued three passes, two of them purposely to Babe Ruth, and each time the strategy, unpopular though it was to the crowd that wanted to see the Babe "bust 'em" was vindicated.

U. S. TROUBLES WITH PEOPLE LIVING HERE

Lyceum Course Lecturer Here Declares Intellect, Soul Make Nation

DISCUSSES VIOLATIONS

"It Is Our Mind and Soul That Is Sick in America," Says Rev. Francis

"The trouble with this country today is not with the political parties or its material resources," said Dr. George E. Francis in his address at the Presbyterian church last evening as the opening number of the Lyceum course "but with the people who live in it."

"There is no doubt that America is the greatest nation in the world so far as size and natural resources go," declared the speaker, "but it is not the size of a country which makes it great; it's the soul and intellect. This is demonstrated by the little country of Greece—a country that developed a civilization under which we are living today," said Dr. Francis, "although Greece was a tiny country with few natural resources or wealth."

"It is our mind and soul that is sick in America," asserted Dr. Francis.

This is indicated by the flagrant violations of the eighteenth amendment, the I. W. W. activities, labor's defiance of the government, and the people's lack of respect for the laws of the country, the speaker explained.

In America the people have still to learn that law is sovereign, it was stated. They make more laws than the people of any other country in the world and break more. It requires such men as Calvin Coolidge to bring the people to respect the law as he did when the entire police force in Boston went on strike.

Dr. Francis pointed out labor groups needed some discipline similar to that given the police of Boston. He illustrated his point with a number of experiences he had encountered while lecturing and attending meetings in the mining region of Indiana and other places in the United States.

"What the labor movement needs is the respect of the American people, and they will obtain this only by considering the rights of the public instead of themselves alone," declared Rev. Francis.

It was pointed out that the violations of the eighteenth amendment to the constitution was another indication of the people's disregard for the sovereign laws of this country. The people made the amendment to the constitution and if they do not like it they can repeal it by the same method, declared the speaker, instead of violating and ridiculing it, for nothing is more deadly than ridicule, said Dr. Francis. It is far more deadly than the bombs or dynamite used by the Reds and Bolsheviks.

The growth of the profiteers was said to be one of the worst evils of the country as a result of the war. The profiteer fattened off the government while the boys were fighting for their country, and now the wealthy people of the country are placing their wealth in tax exempt securities in order to escape taxation.

"The thing for the people to do is to pass a law that no more tax exempt securities shall ever be issued," urged the speaker.

This is the only way by which the rich man can be forced to assume his just share of the burden of taxation," declared Dr. Francis.

None of the dangers threatening the country come from the Bolsheviks, the Reds and the radical labor groups the speaker declared but from the people themselves. They must develop a democratic spirit, their intellectual powers, and their soul, for the fact that America is the largest, the wealthiest, and the finest country in the world will never save it, and the fact that foreigners are constantly arriving on its shores is not a danger to be constantly reiterated, said Dr. Francis because all the American people have to go back but a very short distance to see their own fathers and mother or grandparents coming to this country on an immigrant ship.

SHELBY STARTS BACK ON ROAD TO NORMALCY

JIM JOHNSON, SHELBY'S MAYOR

Shelby, Mont., Oct. 12.—So this is Shelby!

Such is the more than likely exclamation on the lips of countless tourists purposefully meandering their way homeward through the now quite deserted streets of this bereft little metropolis.

Shelby, which only a short time back basked in undiminished publicity as the training site and battleground of the now historic Dempsey-Gibbons fight, is getting back to normalcy.

But by no means has she lost her pluck. True, her fling at pugilistic high finance about kayoed Shelby's money marts and made her the unexamined specimen of a Montana county seat without a bank.

But the morale of her populace who dropped lost gold into the championship arena and got nothing in return has by no means been weakened.

It was their loss that put Patricia Salmon on Broadway, Tom Gibbons on the Pantagruel circuit and set Dempsey up a few notches higher on the lane of easy street.

But all of that is past history so far as Mayor Jim Johnson, who, because he viewed the fight as a civic proved inspirational and enjoyable to the crowd assembled at the opening lecture of the lyceum course given under the auspices of the Woman's Community Council a pipe organ solo was given by Miss Moser and a vocal solo by Mrs. Schoelkopf.

LIGNITE FROM CANADA TO BE SENT HEBRON

North Dakota Experimental Plant to be Used in Seeking Briquetting Method

$30,000 TO BE SPENT

Regina, Sask., Oct. 12.—One hundred and fifty tons of char from Saskatchewan lignite at Hebron is to be sent to Hebron, N. D., to be converted into briquettes in the Hood Odell ovens installed at that place, it was announced by Hon. J. Gardiner, minister of labor and industries.

This was decided upon by Mr. Gardiner, Hon. C. Stewart and Leslie Thompson, secretary of the Lignite Utilization board, at their recent conference at Ottawa, when it was agreed that the federal and Saskatchewan governments would continue experimentation at Bienfait for the next three months.

The decision to ship char to Hebron, to be converted there into briquettes is an alternative to the purchase of a battery of Hood Odell ovens for installation at Bienfait, which would cost approximately $30,000. When manufactured, the briquettes are to be shipped to Canada to be tested by representative people and reported upon. While this is being done the Hood Odell oven already at Bienfait will be subjected to an endurance and experimental test.

"It has been agreed," said Mr. Gardiner "that the Lignite Utilization board will have their full report ready to submit to the federal and Saskatchewan governments by the end of the three-month period in order that we may then be in a position to decide definitely what further action it is advisable to take."

Question of Competition. "It would appear to be no longer a question as to whether lignite coal can be converted into a higher grade fuel," the minister continued. "It remains to be proven whether or not a process has been evolved that will permit of this higher grade fuel being marketed in competition with the fuels now on the market. If such a process has been evolved, unnecessary expenditures; necessary expenditures; unnecessary and necessary criticisms will all be forgotten in the enormous benefits that will come to the people of the southeastern prairie country."

"If success is not reached, the Lig-

enterprise, lost countless thousands, is concerned.

Jim and his neighbors have gotten together to erect a new structure on the ruins left behind by the milling fight fans.

They're going to get back their bank and start it over. They view the event as a lesson well learned and mean to profit.

Keith Bacon, who ran the Green Light dance hall, says business was good before the fight, but it tamed down afterward. The Black Cat, Days of '49 and other uniquely named resorts are no more.

The exodus started after July 4 and has kept up pretty well.

Shelby has had her taste of fictitious inflation and is ready to nurse herself back to health dependant upon wheat, cattle, sheep and her new-found treasurer of oil.

And as for further prize fights—If you value your life don't breathe the word in Shelby.

The town's off fatigued forever except in the role of spectator.

Memory of the last one is still too vivid.

It most caused the count of 10 to be tolled off over Shelby's economic corpse. Which is reason enough for any pet peeve, aversion or what not of the like. Don't you think?

Why Manitoba Withdrew.

Referring to Manitoba's withdrawal from further participation in the Bienfait experiments, Mr. Gardiner said that Manitoba took the position that the experiments have been a failure and that any future developments are no concern of theirs since the coal was in Saskatchewan.

"It is maintained by the Saskatchewan," said the minister, "that Manitoba should be interested in the development of a process that will make Souris lignite available as a high class fuel because of the fact that the resources are owned by the federal government and the location of the mines makes the coal available for almost as large an area in Manitoba as in this province."

Fire Victim Leaves Estate of $133,000

Devils Lake, N. D., Oct. 12.—Geo. H. Locke, who died here last Thursday of injuries received when the Locke block here, which he owned, burned, left an estate of $133,000, equally divided among his three children, John, Ray and Miss Marie Locke, all of this city.

WILHELM SELLS WIFE'S JEWELS

Amsterdam, Oct. 13.—Wilhelm Hohenzollern is raising money by the sale of some of the jewels belonging to his first wife and by the sale of several pictures. Pictures by French masters, and certain Hohenzollern portraits have been disposed of through a Dutch firm and a number of old Dutch and German paintings will be brought into the market shortly.

Some of the late empress' jewels, including a beautiful pearl necklace, were sold through a Cologne jeweler. Some time ago a number of French Gobelines, tapestries and ancient furniture were sold privately to Americans and the proceeds used for the purchase of Dutch funds.

GERMAN SMALL COINS DISAPPEAR

Berlin, Oct. 13.—Aluminum 200 and 500 mark pieces issued by the government some months ago for small change purposes have entirely disappeared, and it is even impossible to obtain them at the banks.

With the depreciation of the currency, the metal in the pieces soon became worth more than their face value in marks. Poker players, too, are held partly responsible for disappearance of the pieces, as the aluminum coins were just a handy size to be used for chips.

DURUM WHEAT PRODUCTION IN U. S. LOW

J. W. Haw of the Agricultural College Figures it Not More Than 50 Million Bushels

MOST IN NORTHWEST

Fargo, Oct. 13.—Durum wheat production in United States this year may not exceed one-half of 75,000,000 bushels produced in 1922, according to figures collected by J. W. Haw, state county agent and leader of the North Dakota Agricultural college. "Practically all of the durum wheat crop is produced in North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Montana," Mr. Haw declares. "Calculating from the federal estimates of the durum acreages in these four states this spring, and of the condition of the durum crop in August, the production in North Dakota would be 27,100,000 bushels, South Dakota 11,500,000, Minnesota 2,300,000 and Montana 2,350,000, or a total of 43,250,000 bushels.

"This estimated total would be a very optimistic figure, however, due to the fact that prospects for hard spring wheat in the same localities have been greatly reduced since August, according to the federal figures, with the likelihood that prospects for durum have been reduced in at least the same ratio. In addition, the areas of heaviest acreages of durum wheat in North Dakota this year coincide with the areas of lowest wheat production.

"It is worthy of careful note that during the closing years of the war and during the year following, durum wheat was for most part on a par so far as price was concerned with the top grades of hard red spring wheat and for long periods during these years commanded a premium over those wheat of from eight to twelve cents a bushel. The average production of durum wheat in the country during the five years from 1918 to 1922 inclusive was 49,000,000 bushels. Our production this year will not be greatly over that of the lowest year of the five, 1919, when the crop totaled 30,000,000 bushels.

"Certainly during the past five years, the use of durum wheat in the United States for semolina and for mixing with other wheat at flour mills has not decreased, and, in fact, all indications are that it has increased. Meanwhile, the export demand for durum wheat has been steady during this period, and already a considerable part of the 1923 crop has been shipped to Duluth for export.

"Despite the prospects for a very light 1923 crop, there is a price spread of from 15 to 20 cents per bushel between durum and hard red spring wheat. If the market is regulated by supply and demand, there must be some conditions of demand worthy of investigation.

WILHELM SELLS WIFE'S JEWELS

Amsterdam, Oct. 13. - Wilhelm Hohenzollern is raising money by the sale of some of the jewels belonging to his first wife and by the sale of several pictures. Pictures by French masters, and certain Hohenzollern portraits have been disposed of through a Dutch firm and a number of old Dutch and German paintings will be brought into the market shortly.

Some of the late empress' jewels, including a beautiful pearl necklace, were sold through a Cologne jeweler. Some time ago a number of French Gobelines, tapestries and ancient furniture were sold privately to Americans and the proceeds used for the purchase of Dutch funds.

GERMAN SMALL COINS DISAPPEAR

Berlin, Oct. 13. -Aluminum 200 and 500 mark pieces issued by the government some months ago for small change purposes have entirely disappeared, and it is even impossible to obtain them at the banks.

With the depreciation of the currency the metal in the pieces soon became worth more than their face value in marks. Poker players, too, are held partly responsible for disappearance of the pieces, as the aluminum coins were just a handy size to be used for chips.

DURUM WHEAT PRODUCTION IN U. S. LOW

J. W. Haw of the Agricultural College Figures it Not More Than 50 Million Bushels

MOST IN NORTHWEST

Fargo, Oct. 13. -Durum wheat production in United States this year may not exceed one-half of 78,000,000 bushels produced in 1922, according to figures collected by J. W. Haw, state county agent leader, of the North Dakota Agricultural college. "Practically all of the durum wheat crop is produced in North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Montana," Mr. Haw declares. "Calculating from the federal estimates of the durum acreages in these four states this spring, and of the condition of the durum crop in August, the production in North Dakota would be 27,100,000 bushels, South Dakota 11,500,000, Minnesota 2,500,000 and Montana 2,350,000, or a total of 43,500,000 bushels.

"This estimated total would be a very optimistic figure, however, due to the fact that prospects for hard spring wheat in the some localities have been greatly reduced since August, according to the federal figures, with the likelihood that prospects for durum have been reduced in at least the same ratio. In addition, the heaviest acreages of durum wheat in North Dakota this year coincide with the areas of lowest wheat production.

"It is worthy of careful note that during the closing years of the war and during the year following, durum wheat was for most part on a par so far as price was concerned with the top grades of hard red spring wheat and for long periods during these years commanded a premium over those wheats of from eight to twelve cents a bushel. The average production of durum wheat in the country during the five years from 1918 to 1922 inclusive was 49,000,000 bushels. Our production this year will not be greatly over that of the lowest year of the five, 1919, when the crop totaled 30,000,000 bushels.

"Certainly during the past five years, the use of durum wheat in the United States for semolina and for mixing with other wheat at flour mills has not decreased, and, in fact, all indications are that it has increased. Meanwhile, the export demand for durum wheat has been steady during this period, and already a considerable part of the 1923 crop has been shipped to Duluth for export.

"Despite the prospects for a very light 1923 crop, there is a price spread of from 15 to 20 cents per bushel between durum and hard red spring wheat. If the market is regulated by supply and demand, there must be some conditions of demand worthy of investigation.

MIGHTY CASEY AGAIN TAKES LIMELIGHT

GIANTS ARE HAPPY

New York, Oct. 12.—Cast permanently, it would seem, in heroic mold—Casey Stengel—Casey, the immortal—smashed the New York Giants to victory with a home run drive yesterday afternoon for the second time in three days of record-breaking world's series strife with the Yankees.

Lashed into the right field bleachers of the Yankee Stadium in the seventh inning, Stengel's blow broke up a tense, thrilling hurling duel between Art Nehf southpaw star of the Giants, and "Sad Sam" Jones, of the Yankees, and gave the world's champions their victory, but sufficient margin in a brilliant 1 to 0 triumph.

The greatest throng that ever paid its way into a baseball arena—65,000 frenzied fans were massed in the gigantic enclosure, while 30,000 more swirled about the entrance outside—saw Stengel deliver the climatic blow that gave John McGraw and his warriors a two to one advantage in the most stirring baseball drama of all time.

Answers Call Again
For a day, Stengel had stepped out of the line light while Babe Ruth rose to the pinnacle of fame with two circuit clouts that swept the Yankees to victory in the second game of the third successive title struggle between these Gotham rivals.

But yesterday "Old Casey," how-legged but heartier, knew again the call to glory that was his when his ninth inning home run gave the Giants their first triumph—and again he answered its summons.

Perhaps the setting was not so dramatic as in the first game, but that mattered not to Casey, for the result was just as effective and gave to the veteran a record that has no equal in world's series annals—the feat of winning two games with home runs in a single championship.

Its nearest approach is the mark of "Home Run" Baker, who won two games for the old Athletics with circuit-blows, but in separate series, 1911 and 1913.

Stengel 2; Ruth 1
And so, stepping to its essential the climax of 1923 in which the home run punch so far has played a monumental role, the score stands: Stengel two victories; Ruth one.

It was a heart-breaking setback for Jones, melancholy moundman of the Yankees, who pitched even more brilliantly than did his southpaw rival, Nehf, in triumph. And too, it was doubly disastrous for the Yankee machine for with defeat they lost, at least temporarily, the services of their star first baseman Wally Pipp, who again wrenched his weakened right ankle in sliding to second in the seventh inning and was forced to leave the game.

Babe Gets Two Walks
Coming back in the eighth after that crushing blow, Jones displayed his mettle by striking out Bancroft, and Groh in succession but he was withdrawn in favor of a pinch hitter in the Yankee half of that inning when Huggins directed his last desperate but futile attack. Joe Bucher, victim of Stengel's homer in the first game held the Giants hitless in the ninth.

Facing the first real crisis of the series John McGraw played ace, Nehf, and the nervy little southpaw came through with flying colors. His work was only slightly less effective than that of Jones. Three times he faced serious threats by the Yankees and on each occasion he rose to the emergency and turned back. In only one inning, the fifth, did the Yankees gather more than one hit off Nehf. He issued three passes, two of them proposition to Babe Ruth, and each time the strategy, unpopular though it was to the crowd that wanted to see the Babe "bust 'em" was vindicated.

The Giants won the first game, but Babe Ruth scored the first run of the series for the Yankees when he scored on the first inning. Picture shows Ruth crossing the plate. Hank Gowdy, Giant catcher, is shown in front of the plate.

Frankie Frisch's dreams of scoring Jawn McGraw's first run in this year's little party with the Yankees came to naught in inning No. 1. Reaching first on a fielder's choice, he made a valiant attempt to steal second. But he was caught as he slid for the bag. Wally Pipp, who guarded his crutches in time to enter the series, is shown watching the play from first base, with Umpire O'Day and a Giant coach behind him.

U.S. TROUBLES WITH PEOPLE LIVING HERE

Lycium Course Lecturer Here Declares Intellect, Soil Make Nations

DISCUSSES VIOLATIONS

It Is Our Mind and Soul That Is Sick in America, Says Rev. Francis

"The trouble with this country today is not with the political parties or its material resources," said Dr. George E. Francis in his address at the Presbyterian church last evening as the opening number of the Lycium course "but with the people who live in it."

"There is no doubt that America is the greatest nation in the world so far as size and natural resources go," declared the speaker, "but it is not the size of a country which makes it great; it's the soul and intellect. This is demonstrated by the little country of Greece, a country that developed a civilization under which we are living today," said Dr. Francis, "although Greece was a tiny country with few natural resources or wealth."

"It is our mind and soul that is sick in America," asserted Dr. Francis.

This is indicated by the flagrant violations of the eighteenth amendment, the I. W. W. activities, labor's defiance of the government, and the people's lack of respect for the laws of the country, the speaker explained.

In America the people have still to learn that law is sovereign, it was stated. They make more laws than the people of any other country in the world and break more. It requires such men as Calvin Coolidge to bring the people to respect the laws as he did when the entire police force in Boston went on strike.

Dr. Francis pointed out labor groups needed some discipline similar to that given the police of Boston. He illustrated his point with a number of experiences he had encountered while lecturing and attending meetings in the mining region of Indiana and other places in the United States.

"What the labor movement needs is the respect of the American people, and they will obtain this only by considering the rights of the public instead of themselves alone," declared Rev. Francis.

It was pointed out that the violations of the eighteenth amendment to the constitution was another indication of the people's disregard for the sovereign laws of this country. The people made the amendment to the constitution and if they do not like it they can repeal it by the same method, declared the speaker, instead of violating and ridiculing it, for nothing is more deadly than ridicule, said Dr. Francis. It is far more deadly than the bombs or dynamite used by the Reds and Bolsheviks.

The growth of the profiteer was said to be one of the worst evils of the country as a result of the war. The profiteer fattened off the government while the boys were fighting for their country, and now the wealthy people of the country are placing their wealth in tax exempt securities in order to escape taxation.

"The thing for the people to do is to pass a law that no more tax exempt securities shall ever be issued," urged the speaker.

This is the only way by which the rich man can be forced to assume his just share of the burden of taxation," declared Dr. Francis.

None of the dangers threatening the country come from the Bolsheviks, the Reds and the radical labor groups the speaker declared but from the people themselves. They must develop a democratic spirit, their intellectual powers, and their soul for the fact that America is the largest, the wealthiest, and the finest country in the world will never save it, and the fact that foreigners are constantly arriving on its shores is not a danger to be constantly reiterated, said Dr. Francis because all the American people have to go back to their own fathers and mother and grandfathers coming to this country as an immigrant ship.

In addition, the speaker which

SHELBY STARTS BACK ON ROAD TO NORMALCY

JIM JOHNSON, SHELBY'S MAYOR

Shelby, Mont., Oct. 12.—So this is Shelby!

Such is the more than likely exclamation on the lips of countless tourists purposefully meandering their way homeward through the now quite deserted streets of this heretofore little metropolis.

Shelby, which only a short time back basked in undiminished publicity as the training site and battleground of the now historic Dempsey-Gibbons fight, is getting back to normalcy.

But by no means has she lost her pluck.

True, her fling at pugilistic high finance about kayped Shelby's money marts and made her the unsung specimen of a Montana county seat without a bank.

But the morale of her populace who dropped lost gold into the championship arena and got nothing in return has by no means been weakened.

It was their loss that put Patricia Salmon on Broadway, Tom Gibbons on the Pantagones circuit and set Dempsey up a few notches higher on the lane of easy street.

But all of that is past history so far as Mayor Jim Johnson, who, because he viewed the fight as a civic enterprise, lost countless thousands, is concerned.

Jim and his neighbors have gotten together to erect a new structure on the ruins left behind by the milling fight fans.

They're going to get back their bank and start it over. They view the event as a lesson well learned and mean to profit.

Keith Bacon, who ran the Green Light dance hall, says business was good before the fight, but it tamed down afterward. The Black Cat, Days of '49 and other uniquely named resorts are no more.

The exodus started after July 4 and has kept up pretty well.

Shelby has had her taste of staid inflation and is ready to nurse herself back to health dependent upon wheat, cattle, sheep and her newfound treasure of oil.

And as for further prize fights—If you value your life don't breathe the word in Shelby.

The town's off statistics forever except in the role of spectator.

Memory of the last one is still too vivid.

It cost caused the count of 10 to be tolled off over Shelby's economic corpse. Which is reason enough for any pet peeve, aversion or what not of the like. Don't you think?

North Dakota Experimental Plant to be Used in Seeking Briquetting Method

$30,000 TO BE SPENT

Regina, Sask., Oct. 13.—One hundred and fifty tons of char from Saskatchewan lignite at Bismarck is to be sent to Hebron, N. D., to be converted into briquettes in the Hood Odell oven installed at that place.

It was announced by Hon. J. Gardiner, minister of labor and industries.

This was decided upon by Mr. Gardiner, Hon. Chas. Stewart and Leslie Thompson, secretary of the Lignite Utilization board, at their recent conference at Ottawa, when it was agreed that the federal and Saskatchewan governments would cooperate in experimentation at Bismarck for the next three months.

The decision to ship char to Hebron to be converted there into briquettes is an alternative to the purchase of a battery of Hood Odell ovens for installation at Bismarck, which would cost approximately $30,000. When manufactured, the briquettes are to be shipped to Canada to be tested by representative people and reported upon. While this is being done the Hood Odell oven already at Bismarck will be subjected to an endurance and experimental test.

"It has been agreed," said Mr. Gardiner "that the Lignite Utilization board will have their full report ready to submit to the federal and Saskatchewan governments by the end of the three-month period in order that we may then be in a position to decide definitely what further action it is advisable to take."

Question of Competition
"It would appear to be no longer a question as to whether lignite coal can be converted into a higher grade fuel," the minister continued. "It remains to be proven whether or not a process has been evolved that will permit of the higher grade fuel being marketed in competition with the fuels now on the market. If such a process has been evolved, unnecessary expenditures; necessary expenditures; unnecessary and necessary criticisms will all be forgotten in the enormous benefits that will come to the people of the southeastern prairie country."

"If success is not reached, the Lignite Utilization board has been a

Why Manitoba Withdraw

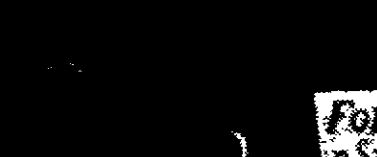

Referring to Manitoba's withdrawal from further participation in the Bismarck experiments, Mr. Gardiner said that Manitoba took the position that the experiments have been a failure and that any future developments are of concern of theirs since the coal was in Saskatchewan.

"It is maintained by the Saskatchewan," said the minister, "that Manitoba should be interested in the development of a process that will make Souris lignite available as a high class fuel because of the fact that the resources are owned by the federal government and the location of the mines makes the coal available for almost as large an area in Manitoba as in this province."

Fire Victim Leaves Estate of $133,000

Devils Lake, N. D., Oct. 13.—Geo. H. Locke, who died here last Thursday of injuries received when the Locke block here, which he owned, burned, left an estate of $133,000, equally divided among his three children, John, Ray and Miss Marie Locke, all of this city.

COUNTY BUDGET ALMOST SAME AS LAST YEAR

Not Much Change Is Seen by County Auditor, Based Upon Present Estimates

TAX RATE HIGHER

While Tax Rate Goes up Valuations Have Been Decreased, Making Things Same

The budget of expenses for Burleigh county for the next year will be about the same as last year, according to County Auditor Johnson. The tax rate probably will be increased because of a decrease in the assessed valuation under the new 75 per cent valuation law.

The road and bridge fund will be cut heavily. Under the law passed by the last legislature, the levy for road and bridge purposes was limited to 2-1/2 mills. The commissioners levied $80,700 for road and bridge purposes but under the limitation law this must be cut $21,652.

The tentative budget for county expenses follows:
General fund $94,067.00
Salaries 41,860.00
Interest, sinking 41,850.00
Roads 43,700.00
Bridges 37,000.00
Insane 11,000.00

The total of $262,477 will be reduced by the cut in the bridge and road funds to about the same as last year.

The tentative county millage tax rate is 11.11 for next year, as compared to 7.58 for this year. The state rate is 3.68 mills as compared to 11.22 last year.

The valuation of the county was cut by the local and state boards from about $28,000,000 to $23,000,000 under the valuation laws.

WINNERS OF ESSAY CONTEST ARE ANNOUNCED

Maxine Burnside Wins First Prize in the "My Champion" Contest Held Here

Maxine Burnside of William Moore school is the winner in the championship essay contest conducted by the Lahr Motor Sales Company in connection with the introduction of the new Champion model of the Overland to the public. The contest closed Wednesday night and Mrs. Katherine Jewell H. O. Saxvik and Miss Marie Huber judged the contest.

The winner of second prize was Donald Thompson and third prize Muriel Benson. Prizes were respectively $5, $3 and $1.

The essays showed careful preparation. The first prize essay of Miss Burnside, which will be followed by the printing of other essays, follows:

MY CHAMPION

The champion baseball player of America is Babe Ruth.

The champion light weight boxer of America is Benny Leonard.

The champion heavy weight boxer of America is Jack Dempsey.

The champion professional golfer of America is Sarazen.

The champion amateur golfer of America is Bobby Jones.

The champion race horse of America is Man of War.

The champion automobile of America is the new Overland Champion.

My champion is everybody's champion, the new Overland "Champion". It is the best of cars on the market, because it has more uses than any other car.

Daddy likes it because it has a sturdy motor with plenty of power for all kinds of roads. He says that it is well built so we won't have any large repair bills to pay and that the fine finish should make it look well for a long long time. He intends to carry all sorts of things in the back part of the car when he goes out on long trips by himself. I know this because I saw him take out the back cushion and seat to show a friend the large space for carrying even rough boxes and grips, without injuring the car at all.

It is mother's champion because it is so easy to drive and is also such a smart looking car. I suppose she will be using it to go shopping and will be bringing home all sorts of packages in the large trunk on the rear.

But the reasons why it is my champion is the fact that it is a closed car and we can keep comfortable in any sort of weather on all sorts of trips and picnics. And best of all no matter where night may catch us we do not have to sleep on a hard bed in a tent or in any stuffy little hotel. We can just make up a bed in side the car and are fixed for the night.
